COUNCIL MOVE TO CURB LANDLORDS

ORDER TO PUNISH GREEDY OWNERS

Ford's Order Calls for Higher Valuation to Meet Unjust Rent Increase

The first official step toward curbing profiteering landlords was taken today when President Francis J. W. Ford introduced in the City Council an order providing for the punishment of property owners who make unreasonable increases in rent by a proportionate increase in the valuation of their property.

The order, if passed, will give the board of assessors authority to summon landlords on the complaint of tenants and to inquire into rent increases. It further provides that if after a hearing such increases are found to be unreasonable that the assessors may re-value the property in the same proportionate amount of increase as made in the rent. The order, as introduced by President Ford, is as follows:

COUNCILLOR FORD'S ORDER.

"Ordered: that Chapter 5 of the Revised Ordinances of the city of

AMERICA TO FLOAT FRANCO-BRITISH LOAN

By Universal Service.

Paris, May 12.—The United States government, according to the Journal des Debats, has undertaken to float a loan for the benefit of the French and British governments immediately after the signing of peace.

Great Britain's finances, the paper says, are in no better shape than are those of France. One-half of the country's revenue is absorbed by taxation and England owes America on short term notes $2,000,000,000.

SURPLUS STOCKS OF WAR FOOD TO FEED EUROPE

Washington, May 12.—Millions of pounds of packing house products, representing surplus stock of the War Department, will be exported to feed the famine-stricken nations abroad, it was announced today.

Following a conference of representatives of the surplus property division of the department and of the packers, it was decided that the products, most of which are in large cans, could not be easily marketed in the United States. Negotiations for their sale will be opened at once with the American relief administration, the allied liquidation commission and other organizations engaged in the work of feeding Europe.

Among the surplus stocks held are 165,000,000 pounds of roast beef in cans ranging from twelve to six pounds; 65,000,000 pounds of corned beef, 42,219,620 pounds of bacon and 20,820,000 one and two pound cans of corned beef hash.

If Your Rent Jumps, Tell Mayor Peters

Rent-payers of Boston!

If you think your landlord is profiteering on you by raising the rent unjustly, report him to Mayor Andrew J. Peters, at Boston City Hall.

Many landlords excuse sharp increase in their rentals by claiming that the property is being assessed at a higher valuation. The assessing department of the city knows whether this is true or not.

Mayor Peters is making a "drive" against piratical landlords who seek to squeeze tenants by excessive rentals. Written reports to him of undue increases, giving name of tenant, and landlord, address of property and former and new rent will bring an investigation.

$29,365,007 IN CITY BUDGET FOR 1919

Peters Files Paper With City Council; Largest Estimates in City's History

Mayor Peters today filed with the City Council his 1919-1920 budget, the largest in the history of the city. It calls for appropriations of $29,365,007.51.

The budget for 1918-1919, the largest in the history of the municipality up to that time, called for only $27,432,-274.47. The radical increase in the amount asked is mostly accounted for by the increases recommended for or granted to city employes.

These increases include the raises of firemen and police, the general boosting of the wages of men who have been getting less than $1,500 a year, and an addition of fifty cents to the daily pay of mechanics and nearly all [illegible] laborers.

HINT THAT REDFIELD OR GLASS MAY RESIGN

Washington, May 12.—The resignation either of Secretary of Commerce Redfield or Secretary of the Treasury Glass, as a result of their split over the situation that led to the resignation of the Industrial Board, was believed to be a possibility in official circles here today. The possibility that President Wilson might take a hand to smooth over the differences that have arisen between the two members of his official family aroused interest.

WILL URGE CONGRESS TO ALLOW 'DRY' REFERENDUM

New York, May 12.—Representative Reuben L. Haskell of Brooklyn announced today he would offer in Congress a resolution calling for a referendum on the national prohibition. If this resolution is defeated, he will offer another, calling for repeal of the prohibition amendment.

BELA KUN RESOLVED TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH

Geneva, May 12.—Bela Kun, the "Red" dictator of Hungary, has resolved to fight to the death and has appointed General Bohn supreme generalissimo of the communist forces, according to a report from Vienna today.

OFFICIAL 'LUNCH HOUNDS' RAPPED BY DONLAN

The "large part" of the city of Boston public boards were today branded as "lunch hounds and meddlers" by Dr. Charles A. Donlan, superintendent of the Boston Infirmary.

Dr. Donlan appeared before the Committee on Commissions at the State House in favor of Mayor Peters' bill to consolidate the Boston infirmary, children's institutions, institutions registration and penal institutions departments. He said:

"No board charged with administering the affairs of a city department can accomplish what a single individual can.

"Each member spends his time in playing his own game. That is one of the reasons that prompted me to initiate this movement by requesting the Mayor to put the administration of the infirmary department under the supervision of the penal commissioner. In my experience in city institutional work I have found that a large part of the personnel of boards is comprised of lunch hounds and meddlers."

ROAD TO ECONOMY.

"Well, what is left of your board now is all right, isn't it?" asked Senator Mahoney of Boston.

"No, what is left of it is all wrong," was the reply.

Sanford Bates, penal commissioner, said he believed that the consolidation would result in a saving of approximately $50,000.

"On one item along $20,000 could be saved," he said. "I refer to the discontinuance of the steamer Hibbard. Instead of continuing this boat in operation I would discontinue it and care for transportation with the Monitor, now also in use."

The Finance Commission, through Chairman George A. Flynn and Mayor Peters, through Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside, registered their approval of the consolidation because it would result in the elimination of duplication of efforts and bring about a decided saving in money and improvement in conditions.

John L. Donovan of Boston, in opposition, characterized the measure as an attempt "to get new jobs for some more Back Bay sports and students—men with a great knowledge of nothing."

He said that the bill had been introduced to "get" certain men "who have given their best efforts to the city" and who cannot be removed but through legislation such as suggested. "The city can't save $50,000 unless some of its employes are discharged," he said.

DONOVAN ASSAILS MAYOR.

Mr. Donovan criticized the administration of Mayor Peters, stating that his wastefulness had resulted in a high tax rate.

"That's one of the reasons for the rents increasing," he said. "Lumber for which the city paid $6,000 for the erection of grandstands for the parade of the 26th Division is to be sold for $2,000. Why isn't it stored for some future occasion?"

AVIATORS ANXIOUS TO GO

Only Unfavorable Weather Conditions Keep U. S. 'Nancies' in Port

Trepassey, N. S., May 12.—"Let's go!"

Those magic words of American initiative were anxiously awaited by the crews of the American "Nancies," the NC-1 and the NC-3 today.

It is extremely unlikely, however, that the two seaplanes will start across the Atlantic today.

The latest available weather reports are not encouraging. Furthermore, some of the American fliers said at least twenty-four more hours will be required in tuning up the two flying boats for the 1,000-mile hop to the Azores.

NC-1 IN SHAPE AGAIN.

The NC-1, which was slightly damaged in a collision with a launch, has been repaired and was in readiness for the flight today.

Commander John H. Towers let it be known today that there may be false starts made by both American planes before they actually get under way. In jumping off from Trepassey for the Azores, the planes will carry the largest possible supply of fuel. If it is found shortly after the start that the fuel load is too heavy they will return to the base here and unload part of the supply.

The heavy rain, which has fallen

SINN FEIN SEIZURE OF ARMS

Raid Castle in County Down; American Envoys Go to Paris Tomorrow

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service from the London Daily Express.

Dublin, May 12.—One hundred Sinn Feiners, in automobiles, raided Ballydomond Castle, at Rosstrevor, County Down, seizing a quantity of arms and ammunition. One arrest was made today.

London, May 12.—British soldiers have held up the Irish-American delegates, Walsh, Ryan and Dunne, at Westport, Ireland. When the trio reached the city they were met by a cordon of armored cars and soldiers and were denied permission to enter.

The Irish-American delegates will leave for Paris tomorrow to present the Irish views to the peace conference, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Galway today, quoting ex-Governor Dunne.

"I will be greatly surprised if the Irish Republic does not succeed, and I think home rule will come in the near future," Mr. Dunne said. "The Irish-Americans were given an enthusiastic reception on their trip from Dublin."

Late Cable Bulletins!

Paris, May 12.—An unconfirmed report was received here today that Naples has been cut off from communication with Rome, indicating that some kind of trouble have developed in Italy. A later dispatch reported a clash between soldiers and the Naples police, in which the soldiers took possession of public buildings. Order was finally restored after several persons had been wounded.

London, May 12.—Premier Scheidemann told a secret session of the peace committee of the German National Assembly that Germany will sign the peace treaty, said a Berlin dispatch to the Daily News today. The National Assembly will confirm this decision this afternoon, the dispatch added.

Versailles, May 12.—Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, goes to Weimar today to confer with the Ebert government in regard to the peace terms.

PREFERENCE TO VETERANS OF WORLD WAR

Declaring the message to be for the benefit of the "public peace, health, safety and convenience" of the state, Governor Coolidge, under the authority given him by the Legislature, today proclaimed as an emergency measure the law which grants civil service preference to veterans of the world war.

Accordingly, Governor Coolidge sent a letter urging the Civil Service Commission to begin examining lists of applicants for places as firemen and policemen.

Governor Coolidge's bill provides that veterans who pass examinations shall be given preference over all other applicants for civil service examinations.

The Legislature recently passed Preston of the Senate McKnight's bill, which suspends all civil service regulations and examinations until July 1 for the benefit of returned soldiers and sailors, but Governor Coolidge held it back in the Legislature with the message that he would veto it unless examinations for policemen, firemen and members of the public health service were required.

That bill remains in the Legislature.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD RESENTS WHITE'S REPORT

The report of Thomas W. White, supervisor of administration, recommending the abolishment of the Civil Service Commission, was denounced by members of that body today as "a distorted picture, unjust, unfair, a slam, a slur" at a hearing before the legislative committee on Administration and Examinations. Supervisor White in his report criticized the commissioners and suggested that it be superseded by a director and two deputies. Senator George H. Jackson of Lynn declared he had been trying for ten years to get an audience with a member of the commission, but had never been able to see one of them until they entered the committee room today.

V LOAN IN NEW YORK OVER BY $52,764,950

New York, May 12.—The New York Federal Reserve District oversubscribed its quota of the Victory loan by $52,764,950, it was officially announced today. Total subscriptions in the district were $1,465,764,950.

BOLSHEVIKI LOSS OF 10,000

Big Capture of Prisoners on Siberian Front; Allied Fleets at Helsingfors

London, May 12.—Several French and British war ships are reported to have arrived at Helsingfors, near the entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia, and all foreigners have been ordered to leave the city, said a dispatch from Stockholm today.

Helsingfors was one of the sea defences of Petrograd before Finland revolted against Russian rule.

Dispatches to the newspaper Aften Tidningen of Stockholm from Helsingfors, Finland, today, state that the allies are gathering a military force in the Finnish capital with the intention of moving on Petrograd and capturing it from the Bolsheviki. A fleet of French and British warships now in the Gulf of Finland will aid in the operations.

Finnish and entente forces were reported last week as moving against Petrograd up the Lake Ladoga route to the northeast. They had gained notable successes against the Bolsheviki, but were halted finally, according to a Bolshevist report from Moscow, by the development reported from Stockholm evidently to allow of the forces Russian capital by way of Kronstadt, the Baltic port of Petrograd.

10,000 Bolshevists Captured in Drive on Siberian Front

Omak, Siberia, May 12 (Via London, May 13)—Ten thousand Bolsheviki war prisoners, thirty-eight guns and 200 machine guns have been captured by Admiral Kolchack's Siberian army in the latest burst of fighting west of Ufa, the Omak government announced today.

In addition, two armored trains, thirty locomotives and two hundred river craft of various kinds were seized.

The Bolshevik forces are now being attacked along the Volga-Buguima line.

OBJECTS TO PEACE TERMS

Fraser, English Journalist, Sends Word That War Chief Balks at Guarantees

London, May 12.—Marshal Foch is dissatisfied with the peace treaty guarantees and is going to retire, Sir John Fraser telegraphed the Evening Standard today. Marshal Petain, the dispatch said, is scheduled to succeed him.

On May 5, after Captain Tardieu had read the 10,000-word digest of the Peace Treaty to the delegates of the small powers, Marshal Foch protested against its military terms. He declared that the security given France was inadequate from a military point of view, and said it was his personal conviction the treaty should not be signed.

The marshal emphasized the necessity of France holding the bridgeheads along the Rhine and said that occupation limited to fifteen years was not sufficient.

Sir John Fraser is an English journalist who has represented leading British newspapers in many European capitals. In 1914 he visited Russia as a member of the committee of British journalists. Later he was knighted for his services to the British empire in his capacity as a journalist.

Commission's Report on Hungary's Boundaries Approved by the "Big Four"

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 12.—The report of the commission dealing with the new frontiers of Hungary has been approved by the Big Four, and the new Austrian boundaries were under consideration today.

It was learned in official American circles that little if any headway had been made toward a settlement of the rival claims on the Adriatic littoral.

Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador to Italy, has conferred with Colonel E. M. House and President Wilson, but the President is standing firm on his original position, and it is understood that if any conces-

Build Now! Need of New Homes Calls for Action

Build now!

The time is at hand for a revival of the building industries of Boston, Massachusetts and New England.

New buildings, many, many new buildings, for both residential and mercantile purposes, are needed.

Any real estate agent knows that. Any seeker after a home or business location, who has wearily scanned the limited field now offered for inspection, knows it, too.

There are patriotic and material reasons for launching a great building movement in this part of the country.

Financial experts are working on adjustments of the Austrian treaty, but it is admitted that there are so many details involved in the treaty that it may be ten days before it is ready for presentation to the Austrian plenipotentiaries.

In the meantime the German envoys at Versailles are showing increasing anxiety over the fact that they will not be permitted to discuss the terms imposed upon them except in writing.

German Assembly Takes Up Treaty With People Calling for Rejection

By ALFRED C. ANDERSEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, May 12.—A full session of the national assembly was held here today to consider the peace terms.

Committees representing the six main political parties held a series of caucuses lasting all day Saturday and Sunday, and, with the exception of the Independents, it was reported that all adopted resolutions that the treaty was not acceptable and could not be signed.

The division of opinion brought about by the independents led to the belief that the meeting of the National Assembly might develop into a stormy one.

The independents have made the outright demand that the Teutonic envoys at Versailles continue negotiations.

The German people's party and the Nationalists both protested specifically against the drastic cuts in the ex-Kaiser or any other German officials to the enlente for trial.

Prince Lichnowsky sent a letter to the Berliner Tageblatt saying: "This peace means the death of Germany unless we sign with the thought of a speedy war of liberation."

This letter was published at a time when messages were being received from all parts of Germany telling of mass meetings of protest against the terms.

Prince Lichnowsky, who was German ambassador to England at the outbreak of the war, added in his letter:

"I do not see any possibility of an acceptable understanding on the present terms. I consider the breaking off of the negotiations the only proper policy. Our adversaries need peace as well as we do. A confidence expect a change of public opinion in the enemy countries against the politicians. If the present negotiations fail there may be a resumption shortly on a favorable basis."

A society in Silesia representing 100,000 persons is reported to have sent a message to President Wilson demanding a hearing and insisting upon "the right of self-determination." If it is not granted, the Silesians threaten to resort to "self help."

At Oppeln in Silesia, 20,000 persons attended a mass meeting at which the sentiment was expressed:

"Let them come and get us."

A large number of telegrams have been received from various organizations urging the government not to reject the treaty.

In the meantime the German envoys at Versailles are showing increasing anxiety over the fact that they will not be permitted to discuss the terms imposed upon them except in writing.

Big Five Formulates Program to Speed Up Minor Peace Treaties

Paris, May 12.—A complete and comprehensive program has been worked out by the "Big Five," the chief deliberating body is a quintet again—for facilitating and speeding up the work of making peace with Germany's former allies, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey.

If the German revolt, and it is still the overwhelming opinion here that they will, despite the terrific wrath now sweeping the former empire, it is expected peace with them will be an accomplished fact on or about June 1.

This date is entirely speculative, however, and no definite hopes should be hung on it especially since the German delegates are showing every sign of intending to draw things out as long as possible. At any rate consideration of peace with the other countries will be a matter of only a brief period after the German document is signed.

The affairs of and in Russia are in such unsettled state that they will have to be constituted by the peace congress before it adjourns but final decisions will undoubtedly be left to the League of Nations.

Even though the treaty with Germany is finished and in the hands of her delegates, Belgium is again insistently demanding that the line has not suffered to the drop of exchange of the 7,000,000,000 marks with which Germany pledged the country should be included in the reparation clauses of the treaty.

Belgian public opinion is told correspondents that unless our peace delegates make a strong campaign for Belgium's claims that the United States will lose much of her popularity in Belgium.

DENY GERMAN PEACE HEAD SOUGHT WILSON

Paris, May 12.—The American delegation today denied that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau attempted to secure an interview with President Wilson. A report that the head of the German peace delegation sought an interview with the President was printed in both the United States and France on Sunday.

Allies May "Half Recognize" the Bolsheviks

By SIDNEY DARK.
Exclusive Cable From the London Daily Express to the International News Service.

Paris, May 12.—It is more than probable that Russian Bolshevik peace delegates will be invited to Paris before the end of the present month, according to information from an authoritative source today.

The allies it is said, may find a way to half recognize the Lenine regime in Moscow and probably the Turks also.

The International Socialists are planning to issue a manifesto recommending to Germany to sign the peace treaty to avert further bloodshed.

President Wilson is reported to be emphatic in his stand that the peace of Europe needs the cooperation of Russia.

AMERICAN AIDS DOUGHBOY TO GET CROSS

Camp Devens, May 12.—Thanks to a story in the Boston American, published Saturday, a doughboy cited by General Pershing, for whom the military authorities were searching, has been found. He is Private Henry R. McPherson of Company C, 306th Infantry, 77th Division. He is at the base hospital here, convalescing from wounds received overseas.

The American on Saturday published the statement that a Distinguished Service Cross was waiting for Private McPherson and advertising for his whereabouts. The young soldier read the account in the American and reported to the adjutant-general's office here.

Today he inspected the citation and the Distinguished Service Cross will be awarded him later with full military honors. It is planned to have a review on the drill field. According to the citation, he volunteered repeatedly to carry messages through a reserve enemy barrage in an attack on St. Juvin, France, last October.

U. S. BATTLESHIP GEORGIA BRINGS 1,400 MEN

Nearly 1,400 fighting Middle Western Artillerymen who had been in the thick of the battle from Chateau-Thierry to armistice day came back to America today aboard the United States battleship Georgia, and were debarked at Commonwealth Pier. They were members of the 121st Field Artillery, 52d Division.

Beside the Westerners, mostly from Wisconsin, were a number of army and navy casuals, among them two Massachusetts officers and one Massachusetts private. The officers were Captain Kimball Winslow, son of the son of Vice-President Addison L. Winship of the National Shawmut Bank, and Captain Ralph L. Draper, son of the late Governor Draper of Massachusetts. Sandringham Harry Boland also hales from Boston.

Captain Draper is a regular army man and came home as a casual. He was met at Commonwealth Pier by his sister, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, and Mr. Gannett. Captain Winship was met by his father and mother. He went across with the 249th Field Artillery and was transferred to the 121st last December.

The Wisconsin boys are mostly from Milwaukee, Green Bay and Racine. They were so glad to be home that they lined the decks of the battleship on its way into and up the harbor, although the pelting rain soaked them through. They were given a hearty harbor welcome by coast craft sent down to meet them.

The Red Cross Salvation Army and other agencies had representatives at the pier to make their home-coming as comfortable as possible. Acting Mayor Corcoran of Milwaukee represented Wisconsin in welcoming the artillerymen as the big ship docked. The men immediately took trains for Camp Devens, from which they fill be sent to home camps.

AL JOLSON TO DIRECT PROGRAM FOR MASONS

Al Jolson of "Sinbad" will take charge of the entertainment and dance to be given this evening by Temple Lodge, A. F. and A. M., at Strand Hall on Huntington avenue.

Many famous stars appearing in theatrical productions in Boston will attend. Grover C. Burkhardt, Ernest A. Grenier and Bertram E. Sullivan, respectively masters of the Washington, Malcolm and Plymouth Theatres, and William W. Saxe, publicity director of the Boston Theatres, will furnish additional talent. The proceeds of the entertainment and dance will be devoted to the welfare and care of indigent members of Temple Lodge. Those in charge of the entertainment include: Arthur Collins, chairman; Morris Linsky, Isaac Rich, Herbert A. Cook, Arthur Lyon, Edward M. Dangel and Samuel Bernhardt.

REPEATS POISONOUS DRINK AND IS SENT UP

Being poisoned by a mixture of denatured alcohol and milk and a subsequent trip to the hospital for treatment did not deter Jim Foley of the South End from trying it again. In company with six others, he was lured away from the Randolph street playground last week to the City Hospital after a flowing bowl consisting of the above named ingredients had been prepared and drunk by the gang. On Saturday he tried the mixture again. Judge Sullivan sent him to the island for ten days.

TWO WOUND STRIPED ENGINEER RE-ENLISTS

Rockdale, May 12.—William H. Moffitt, a Hero of Company C, 101st Engineers, 26th Division, after staying three months at his home, has enlisted in the cavalry and left Rockdale for Fort Slocum, New York, where he will report for France. He wants to be sent to Siberia. While in France he was wounded in the left leg and was later gassed.

LIEUTENANT RICHARD W. SEARS, Boston American camera star, who is shooting pictures for Uncle Sam in France. This photograph was taken recenty at Le Mans.

'Dick' Sears Assigned Giant Locomotive As Camera Stand

"One large locomotive for Lieutenant Sears."

Something like that was the order given at St. Nazaire, the big French war port, when Lieutenant "Dick" Sears—everybody in New England knows "Dick"—arrived to "shoot" some railroad and seaport pictures in his capacity as one of the official photographers in our Signal Corps.

A postcard just received from "Dick," dated at St. Nazaire on April 28, reads:

"Covering seaports and railroads. Today had at my own service a giant American locomotive to make pictures from. Gee, that was great, working from an American engine! Soldier my engineer, too. Sure was happy. Regards."

Thus "Dick" Sears, the camera star from the Boston American staff, continues his smiling and efficient way, taking war and warwork photos now for Uncle Sam.

TRUCK AND STREET CAR COLLIDE ON COURT STREET

A number of persons were shaken up and one man slightly injured when an auto truck crashed into an electric car in front of No. 198 Court street today. The truck, owned by Bernard E. Grant of No. 37 School street, and driven by James H. Powers of No. 212 Chambers street, was proceeding in the same direction as the car when the accident took place. It is believed a broken steering gear was responsible.

all along the North Atlantic coast, threatens the course to the Azores. Commander Tower does not deem it advisable to start until this weather condition has been changed to one more suitable for long distance flying.

The crews of the "Nancies" are elated over the performances of their machines. They bucked high winds at the speed of more than seven miles per hour.

REPAIRS PROMPTLY MADE.

When they inspected the huge seaplanes it was found minor repairs were needed. A broken aileron and a leaking gravity tank were promptly repaired.

In order to increase the speed of the planes a shift of the propellor was made in each plane.

Nothing has been left undone to make the flight a success. Motors are in perfect working order; struts and braces, after examination and test, have been found in excellent condition.

But one thing stands in the way of the beginning of the long transoceanic flight—weather conditions. Ideal weather prevails here. A change of weather in mid-ocean to such as prevails in Trepassey today means a prompt taking-off by the big planes.

CREWS TO BE REDUCED.

Should the resumption of the flight be postponed it is confidently expected that, temporarily, one leg of departure of America's entry in the race across the sea from Trepassey.

It was decided to reduce the crews to five on each plane instead of keeping six on the NC-4 and seven on the NC-3, which the planes carried here.

Identity as to the men to be dropped was not made public.

The Handley Page hydro which has arrived at St. Johns and the Foreboat soon to come over are regarded as the only aircraft in the American planes.

Both these big multiple engined machines will succeed," it was generally agreed, "but," and smiles vanished as they did it, "they will follow in the wake of the Nancy sisters."

PLANES BEHAVED WELL.

But what pleased Commanders Towers and Bellinger now in charge of the commissioned aircraft, was that the NC boats drove through the weather conditions which the British machines considered too severe to risk flights.

The American planes behaved beautifully, all agreed, flying as low as 40 and as high as 5,600 feet in the lumpiest weather, with the wind veering in nearly every direction.

The British officers who dubbed the American adventure as a "Cook's tour" and scoffed at the possibility of Liberty motors making good, will now take notice how the multi-engined planes were flexible and responsive to an unexpected degree in rough going and several times swept back to the coast in minutes after they were blown off the true line.

Captain-Towers expressed pleasure at receiving America's congratulations by wireless which were picked up in the air.

It is significant that as yet no message has come from either of the British pilots at St. John's, though Major Partridge, official observer of the British air force, sent a wire of congratulations.

New Inventions Simplify Navigation for U. S. Planes in Transatlantic Flight

Washington, May 12.—The transAtlantic flight of the naval seaplanes is to be guided by newly-invented instruments which will enable the pilots to navigate the machines regardless of conditions considered necessary for the sailing of ships of the sea. This information was made public by the Navy Department last night.

The special inventions are an aerial sextant developed by Commander R. E. Byrd, a drift and speed indicator, and a course and distance indicator.

A "bubble" in the tube of the aerial sextant serves the same purpose as the horizon in the device used by ship navigators. The value of this invention is seen in the fact that frequently the horizon is not visible from airplanes.

By basing observations on the artificial horizon, the pilot using the new sextant brings that and the sun into contact much in the same manner as the horizon and the altitude of the sun is observed with the old sextant. The altitude of the sun being calculated, astronomical tables give the exact position.

The speed and drifting indicator enables the seaplane navigator to determine not only the true course of his machine but also the effect of the wind. They are bombs which give out a dense smoke when utilized by day and an intense light which is the marker at night.

A few observations of this kind will give the velocity of the wind and furnish data by which the course of the plane may be regulated.

The aerial seaplane pilot also has an instrument by which he can calculate the exact time of day. If the plane travels around all the way around the earth a full day would be gained.

In going from Newfoundland to the Azores in a period of twenty-four hours there would be a discrepancy of two hours but this is corrected by the new instruments being used.

In addition to these modern navigation methods the naval flyers are provided with what is called a new zenithal chart of the Atlantic Ocean. By employing this chart the time for making corrections in actual time, altitude, speed drift, etc., is reduced so that calculations which on board ship would require half an hour, more can be determined this a few minutes.

FRENCH SEND US BILLS TOTALING $750,000,000

Charges Against United States Expected to Offset Great Loan Made to Ally

By JUSTIN McGRATH,
Editorial Correspondent, Universal Service.

Washington, May 12.—One of the first things Congress will do when it assembles will be to make a start on "taking stock." It is considered essential that they now legislate involving appropriations that there should be a definite ascertainment of the nation's war obligations and the nation's war credits.

The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized by Congress to make loans to the allies up to $10,000,000,000. This limit has been nearly reached. Saturday the Treasury Department made a new credit of $50,000,000, in favor of France, and this brought the credit given to all the allies up to $9,288,828,000.

FIVE PER CENT. INTEREST.

The total of the credits given France by the United States now stands at $2,302,477,000. Our loans to France bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

France has a great many claims against the United States as an offset to the amounts loaned her. Thus far she has rendered us bills showing we are indebted to her in the sum of $750,000,000.

The bills thus far put in by France are mainly for "75s," rolling stock, airplane parts, electric and water supplies, motor transports and such small quantities of food as they supplied our troops.

It will be recalled that the charge was made that France was rendering bills to the United States not only for camp sites, for which our government already has paid to pay, but also for damage done to land over which our troops marched, for material used by our troops in repairing roads torn up by American trucks during the army's advance, and even for land used as cemeteries for our dead.

If such charges, or any of them, are to be made they have not yet been received by the War Department. Up to date the only charges made by France against us which the W. department has received are for the items enumerated above.

EXPECTS MANY MORE BILLS.

However, the War Department experts to receive a great many more bills from France.

Army officials say the total of these bills are almost certain to run to $1,-$50,000,000.

The army officials figure that France has offsetting charges against us for railroad trackage the United States troops tore up, camp sites, wreckage, and charges for hospitals, which will double the total of $750,000,000 for which bills already have been rendered.

If the army estimate of legitimate charges which France can make against the United States should prove correct, the account between France and the United States would then stand as follows:

Total loans made by the U. S. to France..... $2,302,477,000
Our debts to France.... 1,150,000,000
Amt. still due by France 1,850,477,000

It is expected that the United States will have a very great offset to the claim France against us in the ext docks built by our engineer Bordeaux, on the Gironde and at

FINEST DOCKS IN WORLD.

The docks the American engineers built at Bordeaux are said to be among the finest in all Europe. They ought to make Bordeaux one of the great ports of Europe when normal trade is resumed.

The disposition of the officials of the administration, and of members of Congress, with respect to the settlement with France is to be liberal. But the American attitude toward France undoubtedly will be affected by the French attitude toward America.

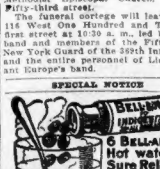
SPECIAL NOTICE



BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

DEAR FOLKS:

THE oftener I come in personal contact with the workers in the Wilson & Co. organization, the greater is my conviction that Mr. Wilson by gaining their loyalty and confidence has created the greatest asset that his business possesses.

Let me tell you how the workers plan to make the work of Mr. Wilson and that of his associates in the official family easier, and to leave them free to handle the big problems which come before them every working day.

They have organized a COMMITTEE OF 32, consisting of men and women members, who are elected to membership by vote of their associates in the several departments of the business.

Every member of the committee receives from his or her associates suggestions that bear on improving conditions in the plant, and then in committee meetings, which are held frequently, these suggestions are discussed frankly, and if by majority vote it is decided to make recommendations to the Official Family—as is done, there being present at all meetings a very able woman secretary who transcribes, in concrete form, the recommendations made.

Here is a case of workers selecting men and women from their own ranks to represent them in all important matters affecting their interests—and the members of the Committee of 32 have the complete confidence of their associates. Whatever the Committee votes to do is always satisfactory to the workers in all departments.

I was privileged to be present at one of the meetings of the Committee of 32. I heard both men and women stand on their feet and talk straight from the shoulder. There was no misunderstanding what they said. They knew what they wanted to say and they said it. They voted to make some recommendations to the officials.

Then they invited me to talk to them, which I was glad to do because I believe thoroughly in the idea that relationship between men in business can be settled by the workers themselves if they will honestly and sincerely cooperate with one another and state their case frankly to the heads of the business.

After I had finished talking, the Committee of 32, by unanimous vote, elected me an honorary member—an honor that I prize very highly.

What is the result of all this, so far as the business of Wilson & Co. is concerned?

The first result—and the most important of all—is that the Committee of 32 succeeds in maintaining a splendid relationship between the workers and the officials. Mutual confidence and respect prevails continuously.

The second result—also very important—is that the speedy adoption by the officials of the recommendations made by the Committee of 32, puts the members on their honor and they make only such recommendations as are important. Trivial matters never get a majority vote in the Committee meetings.

The third result—also very important—is that the members of the Committee of 32 are more often concerned about making recommendations designed to benefit the business as a whole than they are about having something done to benefit themselves.

The Committee has brought about a condition of affairs which means contentment on the part of their associate workers and this, of course, makes them more efficient and more keen to serve the company honestly.

At the Committee meeting I attended one man had a good deal to say about the splendid work of the men in the Ham and Bacon department—telling his associate members of their pride in producing the Certified Wilson Brands, and suggesting that every worker in every other department should make it a matter of personal honor to assist in the preparation of food products that will always live up to the slogan, "The Wilson Label Protects Your Table."

A woman, representing the Canned Goods department, informed the Ham and Bacon men that he and his associate workers were a product of their achievement in producing Certified Wilson Brands than she and her associate workers were in producing Certified Brands of Canned Meats, Vegetables, Fruits, Table Delicacies, etc.

So it goes. Workers are keyed up in every department to produce the finest and purest Food Products and they are just as proud of the Wilson & Co. slogan "The Wilson Label Protects Your Table," as Mr. Wilson is —and that means being some proud.

Sincerely, William C. Freeman,
350 Fifth Ave., New York City.

"THIRD DEGREE" TO FORGE LAST LINK AROUND BARRE STRANGLER

GRILL PAL OF SLAIN WOMAN

Police Hasten End of Broadwell Case Under Lash of Pastor's Sermon

Barre, Vt., May 12.—A dramatic scene will be enacted in a little room on the third floor of a hotel in this city today as the ante-climax to the arrest of the strangler of Mrs. Harry E. Broadwell, whose naked body was left by the murderer in the Wheelock garden fronting Main street a week ago yesterday morning.

In this room it is believed that the young mother was strangled and there the first arrest of the baffling case will probably be made. For in this room the witness who is suspected of a full knowledge of the shocking crime will be "third-degreed" and under the psychological reaction of the exhibits of the case and the interrogations of the investigators, it is expected that he will reveal the identity of the strangler.

That this scene will be the preliminary to the arrest of the murderer is an open secret in Barre. Early this morning there arrived here from Boston a party of the private detectives working on the case and with them was a man who, it is believed, was to be the pinpal of the denouement that is to be staged in the hotel. Bearing out this theory is the fact that the grilling of the various witnesses during the past twenty-four hours has been conducted in the room on the third floor instead of in the offices of State Attorney Davis on Main street.

DENOUNCES "BARBE BEASTS."

Whether the mysterious Grace Grimes of the case, or her mother, a Mrs. Codding, will feature in today's expected developments was not disclosed by the police. It had been thought this woman, who was an intimate of the murdered mother and a close friend of the man from whom the police expect to get the evidence necessary to clinch the case would arrive with the party from Boston. The personnel of this party with its highly important relation to the arrest of the strangler, was kept a secret.

Quickening the activities of the police toward a speedy wind-up of the case today was the following announcement of "the wild beasts of Barre" and the "vicious resorts and dens of vice" the police are directly connected with the crime, by the Rev. John H. Riordan, Congregational pastor and dean of the clergy of the city, from his pulpit Sunday. The Rev. Riordan's arraignment of local conditions was echoed by nearly all the clergymen in their Sunday sermons.

SEEN HERE SATURDAY.

The suspect most sought after has not been in Barre for at least a year prior to Saturday, May 3. On that day he rode up Main street in an automobile. After that time and following the murder he disappeared. That he was friendly with Mrs. Broadwell during his residence here is a known fact. Furthermore it is said that following his going to Boston to work and live he held frequent long distance telephonic conversations with Mrs. Broadwell.

It developed this morning that Mrs. Broadwell had planned during the trip to Boston this Summer for the purpose of visiting Grace Grimes and her mother, a Mrs. Codding. Just where they lived in Boston or vicinity is not known to Harry E. Broadwell, husband of the murdered woman.

Mrs. Grimes and Mrs. Broadwell communicated with one another quite often since the former went to Boston to live. A most peculiar feature of one of these communications came to light today when her husband showed a postal which he had received through the mails from Mrs. Grimes.

The cancellation stamp on this postal had been scratched over with indelible ink so that it is impossible for one to tell just exactly what postal station in Boston or vicinity it was mailed at. It was apparently not in Boston, but probably in Lynn. That end of the case is being closely investigated.

Major Says Gauze in Ears Will Prevent Seasickness

What he believes is an absolute cure for seasickness was announced yesterday by Major A. E. Lemon, surgeon of the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth United States Infantry, now stationed at Camp Mills, L. I.

Major Lemon says he has relieved most violent attacks of seasickness by packing the ears of the victim with sterilized gauze. He maintains that the trouble is caused solely by the organ of equilibrium within the ear, and that the stomach is only an innocent bystander. Here is his explanation:

"The counter pressure in the ear counteracts the concussion of intermittent air pressure and relief is had at once. A person should use a piece of gauze about two inches square and pack it firmly in the ear passage, but not against the drum."

Major Lemon has been requested to remain in the service a while longer to develop the remedy.

LAWYER, OUT OF PRISON CAMP, ENLISTS

E. H. James of Concord Enters United States Army as Private

After serving three years and four months in a German prison, Edward H. James of Concord enlisted today as a private in the American army. He was graduate from Harvard in 1898 and practiced law in Seattle and other places until he became interested in the war.

"I went to Germany during the war just to lecture about the importance of democracy and what American democracy means," he explained today to several questions put to him by officers at army headquarters. "I knew I would get in trouble by my remarks.

"Ambassador Gerard had me sent to Holland, as he feared more serious intervention on the part of the German government, but I was also expelled from Holland, so, through Dutch smugglers, I found myself again in Germany, right in Berlin.

"For my advocacy of democratic ideas I was thrown into Moabit prison and there I remained during the war and until the armistice was signed. I have enlisted in the army because I believe that every man wants to serve America in some way during this great crisis and America means more to me than any other country on the face of the earth.

"I've traveled a good deal and know something about different countries and I believe that 'a man that serves his country today by getting identified with that part of the country's life that will most needed to defend her rights and privileges.'"

James is a nephew of Professor William James of Harvard and Henry James, the novelist.

COL. BLANCHARD HOME WITH WAR SERVICE CROSS

Boston Banker, Although Gassed, Insisted on Leading His Men

New York, May 12.—Wearing his distinguished service cross, presented to him by General Pershing for extraordinary heroism between October 7 and 21, when, despite severe illness, he continued to lead his command, Lieutenant-Colonel Harold Blanchard, a retired banker of Boston, who makes his home at the Tennis and Racquet Club in that city, returned here today on the American transport Arcadia from Bordeaux.

Colonel Blanchard went to France in April, 1917, as a major commanding the second battalion of the 26th Infantry of the 82nd, or All-America Division, which division was made up of troops from most every State in the Union, 4,000 of the unit being sent from Camp Devens to Camp Upton, where the division was organized.

With the 327th he fought through all of their engagements in the Toul sector, at Marbache, S. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne, where he won his D. S. C. and an additional Croix de Gare with a palm.

On October 7 Major Blanchard was gassed, but stayed with his battalion throughout the remainder of the engagement.

His citation, presented him by General Pershing, reads: "To an officer who was always a model of courage, and who while seriously ill stayed for fourteen days with his battalion and led them to the assault of the enemy's strongly fortified positions, which he succeeded in taking."

Also on the Arcadia was Lieutenant Benjamin P. Whitney of Wayland, Mass., who went to France in June with the 301st Infantry of the 76th Division, but who was detached and put in command of a prisoner of war company of 450 Germans, who were doing laborers' work in the vicinity of Marseilles.

Whitney declared that the more educated of the Germans were the most arrogant and that considerable trouble was experienced from this class of prisoners.

PRETTIEST BACK BAY MODEL IN SECRET WEDDING

Mrs. Robert Phillips, formerly "Peggy" De Venney, who held off all admirers save one and married him after a rapid-fire courtship.

"Peggy" De Venney, "the prettiest model on Boylston street," will pose no more in brilliant plumage before the fashionable dames who patronized the exclusive department store where she worked.

"Peggy" is Mrs. Robert Phillips now and is living in Philadelphia following a rapid-fire courtship and a marriage which was kept a secret except from the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The "prettiest model" is the daughter of Mrs. Catherine De Venney of No. 45 Forbes street, Jamaica Plain. She is twenty-one years old and her husband is the same age. He lived on Kilgore avenue in Medford, where his mother, a buyer in another department store, still lives.

Miss De Venney was popular socially in Jamaica Plain, and at the store where she worked all the girls agreed that they were not greatly surprised at the news of her marriage.

"Peggy had admirers by the score, but she held them all off but this one," said one lively model when she learned of the marriage. "It was only a matter of time until she would have had to marry in self-defense."

Mrs. Phillips worked in the demonstration room until almost the day of her trip to Philadelphia to get married. Her mother doubts that the young people will return to Boston. Mr. Phillips has a responsible government position.

FORMER CROWN PRINCE TRIED TO KILL SELF

Also Attempted Life of One of Sweethearts Following Revelation by Fortune Teller

Exclusive Cable to the International News From the Petit Journal, Paris.

Charleville, France, May 1. (Delayed.)—That the former Crown Prince of Germany attempted to commit suicide at Charleville just before his flight into Holland was learned today from a fortune teller known as Madame Lisma, whose chief client during the German occupation of this part of France was Wilhelm's heir.

At the same time the ex-Crown Prince attempted to shoot one of his numerous sweethearts, but was unsuccessful.

"You will never reign," was one of the sententious predictions made to Mme. Lisma at a sitting she gave Frederick William.

Early in the Winter of 1916 he received her home and without giving his name handed her various small articles belonging to his wife and children.

"What do they come from?" the imperial heir asked brusquely.

CONSULTED SEERESS ON LOVE.

Mme. Emma, who had immediately recognized her visitor had no difficulty in giving the correct answer to this question.

"You read the cards and tell me what they say," was the next request. The fortune teller spread her cards upon the table, studied them closely and rejoined calmly:

"You will come again."

Never questioning the prophecy, the then Crown Prince paled and with bent head slunk down the stairs of the house without saying another word.

Later he called on several occasions and consulted the fair seeress on affairs of state, but concerning some of the love intrigues which made his notorious in this section. He confessed he had gone madly infatuated with a girl in her "teens," whom he called "Bebe."

"As soon as I saw her I fell in love with her," the former heir confessed. Then he asked for the cards which would be.

The task was by no means to the liking of the seeress. The lover might be told with impunity that he would lose his throne, forever perhaps, but she would happen if misfortune were also foretold for an affair of the heart. Emma took no chances and did not scruple to paint the future in glowing colors.

AFFECTED LIFE.

Another day the then Crown Prince came to Emma to inquire about the future of his father, then the Kaiser.

"He will die of trouble in the head," the fortune teller said, but the former heir who wished to avoid using the word madness. But "then I shall be Emperor," he cried. Bursting into laughter he cried.

"That shall be a surprise me in the case of papa."

During the Spring offensive of 1918 when the Crown Prince's army headquarters reposed in the triumph of the ex-Crown Prince's army, the fortune teller was again called upon.

"Read from the cards how long I am destined to remain with Bebe," he commanded.

"Seven days and seven months," was the reply. "The cards lie, was the threatening retort, and he added with a threatening grin.

"If that is so I would prefer to kill myself right now with my Bebe."

He came near putting his plan into execution, however, before he left Charleville. Frederick William learned that one of his generals was threatened with financial ruin and committed suicide in a hotel room. Rushing over to the room the ex-Crown Prince drew his revolver and fired several shots at Bebe, but only one bullet endangered her life, a shot ripped through her cheek. Next he attempted to turn the weapon on himself, but was forced to desist when he had been attacked by the shots. ran into the room and wrested him. A few days later the former Crown Prince flew into Holland.

VAGRANT GOATS HINDER NEW YORK CAR SERVICE

New York, May 12.—Besides cabarets, eagles and divorcees, New York has its goats. Mayor Hylan had to take time off from other duties today to consider the critical situation in "Pigtown" part of his domain, where the goats have been feasting on Spring vegetables and hindering the street car service. Hundreds of complaints from Mayor Hylan's goat-owners were arraigned and fined $1 each.

WIFE'S 'DOT' CUT FROM $375 TO $20 A WEEK

Brown, Rich New York Drug Man Seeking Divorce, Reduces Allowance

New York, May 12.—I am through. My husband can never tempt me again. The beautiful bubble of life that we had before us in all its rainbow tints exploded as a bubble will, and I am left alone, deserted, my hills unpaid and scarred."

This statement was made to Mrs. Dorothy Wands Brown, twenty-five year-old bride of Dudley P. Brown, wealthy drug manufacturer of Forest Hills, L. I., who has filed papers in an action for divorce. He is fifty-one.

With tears coursing down her cheeks and her eyes flashing anger, Mrs. Brown told her story. She started with this quotation:

"The cup he hurried to my lips, I drank,
Ken though from bitter founts it sipped
Nor shrank from draining e'en its dregs
When so he willed."

"Before I tell you about myself," Mrs. Brown continued, "please let me warn other young women to think hard before they consent to marry men old enough to be their father. Oh, the sadness that follows such a step. Such a marriage rarely ends happily, and I do not believe that it is ever blessed.

"Here you see me trying to figure out how I can live on $20 a week, my millionaire husband having ordered me to make application to the Supreme Court for a proper and decent sum.

"Ever since meeting Mr. Brown I have had a drawing account of $1,000 a month, being accorded me at every important store and with servants and tenantries

"I never worked in my life. It is not that I am above work, but simply that I don't know how to work. I could earn to-morrow, if my husband said not long ago that he would not see me on my hired scrubbing—he, the father of our child.

SOCIETY FOLKS' 'PAGAN' DANCE DENOUNCED

Charity Mocked, Says Pastor; New York Must "Pay the Piper"

New York, May 12.—Women of the New York and Newport social colony, including Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. J. W. Vanderbilt Jr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, were denounced by Rev. John Howard Melish of the Christ Episcopal church for participation in the famous "Bal Blanc" held last week at the Ritz-Carlton.

In a sensational sermon was a polemic against dancing and decollete dress. He declared that dancing was responsible for the prevalence of the "social evil" and the need for juvenile courts, and that the day would come when New York must "pay the piper." At one point he said:

"Suppose Jesus Christ had come to New York during the progress of that ball, and had walked into the Ritz-Carlton. What would have happened? Doubtless the first thing would have been that the ladies would have grabbed anything in sight with which to cover their exposed bodies."

IN THE NAME OF CHARITY.

The ball mentioned was held by the "Big Sisters," a charity organization to protect children brought before the Juvenile Court. Its object was to raise a fund.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt headed the Protestant committee, and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., the Catholic committee. One of Dr. Stanley Mead's points of objection was the linking of the church with the project. Backsliders included Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Mrs. Thomas F. Hixon, Mrs. John Wanamaker, Jr., Mrs. Clarence Mackay, Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin, Mrs. Nicholas Brady, Mrs. Mortimer Schiff, the Earl of Latham, Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and Mrs. C. H. Sabin.

The clergyman attacked the patronesses for paying $50 each for table reservations. The money should have gone to the Big Sisters, and not paid for entertainment.

TRACE RUIN TO DANCE HALL.

"More than 95 per cent of men who walk the streets are infected with deadly diseases that cause 95 per cent of the blindness of children and that cause 75 per cent of the operations performed upon women. 75 per cent of childless marriages and other horrible results.

He asserted that the very people who are responsible for this evil are not the ones found through the dance hall and the cafe theatre.

"Ever since coercion Mr. Brown I have had a drawing account of $1,000 a month, being accorded me at every important store and with servants and tenantries

"I never worked in my life. It is not that I am above work, but simply that I don't know how to work. I could earn to-morrow, if my husband said not long ago that he would not see me on my hired scrubbing—he, the father of our child.

DEMAND IS GROWING FOR NEW BUILDING ENTERPRISE

The war is over. The quicker the return to pre-war conditions and the quicker a readjustment of business, the better for the general public, for the capitalist, the business man, the salaried person and the wage-earner.

This applies particularly to our soldiers. Back from the war and its terrific struggle, our heroes wish and need the regularity of normal civilian life, steady work, fixed conditions and opportunity to plan for the future.

The plea of bankers, contractors and builders through the war crisis has been this:

"We cannot build now. Everything is too high, wages, labor and so on. It is impossible to figure on contracts. Dealers in building materials will not quote figures, not for any length of time, at least. We cannot take the chance. We must wait until conditions are stabilized."

INDORSED BY GOVERNOR.

But there is another side to the question.

"It surely is not the time to wait." Who says so?

None the less than Governor Calvin Coolidge himself.

The Governor, in a vigorous letter to the Boston American, endorses this campaign of the American to stimulate building in Massachusetts.

He starts off by saying:

"I am very glad indeed to see that you are taking up the movement to stimulate building in the Commonwealth. I believe it is for the best interest of the community that the building trade should be re-established, and that building operations should start at once."

Notice these last two words: "At once."

The Governor concludes his letter thus:

"I sincerely hope the efforts of the Boston American to encourage rebuilding will be promptly and generously responded to."

So much for endorsement of the idea.

COMMONWEALTH TO POINT WAY.

In the body of his letter the Governor says that the various agencies of government should take the lead in the matter of building now. He calls attention to the fact that "in furtherance of this I have sent a supplementary budget to the Legislature, asking for an appropriation so that the Commonwealth may point the way."

Then our Governor, who is accredited, even by his political opponents, with being an extremely hard-headed and practical man, takes issue with this idea of waiting. He gives material reasons for building now. He says, in course of his argument:

"The material resources of the community must be used for the benefit of the people of the community.

"Unless this is done by private enterprise it will have to be done through the taxing power and otherwise for the purpose of relieving the suffering caused by unemployment.

"Every facility is at hand for an era of great prosperity. What is needed is the courage to act."

On the question of labor cost the Governor uses this sentence:

"Competent builders say that labor costs in the building industry do not vary materially from what they have been for several years."

PROSPERITY TO FOLLOW.

A little later in his letter the Governor drives hard with one of the greatest arguments at hand, emphasizing the immediate benefit that follows a start. He words it thus:

"The contract for any kind of building at once makes the opportunity for other contracts for steel, cement, lumber, plumbing, steam heating, electrical equipment and all other materials required in construction. This would mean the employment of large numbers of people in various factories manufacturing these materials. Activities once started will set other business activities in motion, and a general prosperity will follow."

That argument appeals to the great body of people. Building contracts mean more work in many lines, more jobs, more pay envelopes.

More pay envelopes mean more money earned, more spent, more saved.

It means more money deposited in the banks, more for the merchants and, as the money travels its regular financial circle, more money for the bankers to lend out on building enterprises.

In brief, the time is ripe now and the need is pressing for every person allied with the building industry—banker, contractor, builder and workman—to give the building industry a "self-starter."

It's a case of everybody co-operate. Build now!

Governor Coolidge Praises American's Work to Boom Building

Editor, Boston American: I am very glad indeed to see that you are taking up the movement to stimulate building in the Commonwealth. I believe it is for the best interest of the community that the building trade should be re-established, and that building operations should start at once.

In the matter of building now, the various agencies of government ought to take the lead, and in furtherance of this I have sent a supplementary budget to the Legislature, asking for an appropriation, so that the Commonwealth may point the way. The material resources of the community must be used for the benefit of the people of the community. Such use is the only thing that gives them value and the only warrant for their existence. Unless this is done by private enterprise it will have to be done through the taxing power and otherwise for the purpose of relieving the suffering caused by unemployment.

Every facility is at hand for an era of great prosperity. What is needed is the courage to act. The State exhibiting the courage and taking the lead, private construction it is hoped will follow. Competent builders say that labor costs in the building industry do not vary materially from what they have been for several years.

It surely is not the time to wait. We should resume business activities. If everybody waits there no doubt will be a perpendicular fall with attending want, distress and calamity. If people will go ahead with building there may be a gradual decline, but it can be borne with the least inconvenience.

The contract for any kind of building at once makes the opportunity for other contracts for steel, cement, bricks, lumber, plumbing, steam heating, electrical equipment and all other materials required in construction. This would mean the employment of large numbers of people in various factories manufacturing these materials. Activities once started will set other business activities in motion, and a general prosperity will follow.

I sincerely hope the efforts of the Boston American to encourage rebuilding will be promptly and generously responded to.

Very truly yours,

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CHELSEA JOINS WAR ON RENT PROFITEERS

Boston of 1914 be amended by adding thereto the following section:

"Section 5.—Whenever the Board of Assessors receive complaints that any person owning real estate within the city of Boston has unjustly increased the rent thereof, said board shall give a hearing to determine whether or not said rent has been unjustly raised, and shall cause notice thereof to be given to the said owner of the said real estate, and to all parties interested.

"If, in the opinion of said board, said rent has been unjustly increased, said board shall cause said property to be revalued on the basis of said increased rent, and said increased valuation shall be adopted as a basis for taxation in the current year."

Chelsea got into the crusade against profiteering landlords today, and is out to make it a finish fight.

Mayor Melvin R. Breath took the same course as that of Mayor Peters, ordering the assessors to make an investigation, raise valuations where that seemed the only remedy for the present, and report as to the real cure for the situation.

CHELSEA JOINS CRUSADE.

"Conditions are very bad in some parts of Chelsea," declared the Mayor today. "I have received a number of complaints, showing that not only have rents been unjustly raised, but tenants have been heartlessly evicted on short notice.

"This has got to stop. In one tenement the rents were increased $6 for each apartment. We can find no recent improvements on the property, no increase in valuation and no possible excuse for the raise."

Mayor Breath found that certain speculators were buying houses at exorbitant rates from their present owners, then passing on the raise to their tenants. They realize the shortage of tenements and are taking full advantage of it, to the discomfort and financial loss of every rent payer in the city.

THE SAME EVERYWHERE.

Rent increases are no respectors of localities. Whether you live in one of those eight-room and two-bath, sun parlor-in-the-rear apartments that flourish in Brookline, or whether you confine your Lares and Penates to a modern five-room "flat" in Roxbury, there is one thing that is true. Your rent is going up!

The only difference in that it is probably going up to a greater extent in Brookline than it is in Roxbury, that it will undoubtedly be higher in Chestnut Hill than in Somerville, but higher, it is sure to be.

One of the sudden increases reported today was on an apartment in Brookline on the Coolidge Corner section. On a modest apartment of five rooms the increase is just 15 per cent. The block has nine apartments, and a proportionate increase was levied on all of the tenants.

HIGH RENT, BUT NO EXTRAS.

"There is no excuse for this increase that we can see," said the matron who reported this unheard of raise. "There has not been a drop of paint used here or a nail driven in in the way of repairs for the past two years. We have no janitor service that we did not have before, and no greater facilities than we had before. Yet the increase is there just the same.

"While we figured that we were paying about all that we could afford to pay for what we have here, this extra is simply levied upon us. And our friends all around us are reporting just the same conditions."

This property, according to the Brookline assessors, is valued at 14,200, of which $1,300 is for the land. The house in itself has six apartments renting at $50 each, with the three lower ones at $45. This, in the first place, gives the landlord a yearly rental of over 26 per cent. of his original investment.

The 15 per cent increase that he is levying is on top of that modest little per cent.

Much the same condition is reported in Somerville. On Warren avenue apartments that have been renting at $35 have jumped to $60, while the $50 apartments have gone up to $75.

"Gone up?" said Mrs. Somerville, who reported this case. "I should think they have. But I am not going to pay it. Anyone who can pay $60 for an apartment can afford to own a house—and I'm going out and buy mine, right now."

Criticises Mayor for Selling Y. D. Stand Lumber to Wreckers

"Mayor Peters could have started this building campaign off with a rush if he had seen fit to sell the lumber in the Y. D. stands to builders instead of to wreckers, who will speculate with it and tie it up for months and years," said Lieutenant Bernard F. Carroll of No. 11 Elmdale street, Dorchester, just returned to civil life. Lieutenant Carroll is one of the biggest builders in Dorchester.

His criticism of the course taken by the Mayor follows:

"The housing conditions in Dorchester are deplorable, and when I went back into civil life I asked that I be allowed to bid on the lumber in the stands on the Common and elsewhere. I was told wreckers were bidding, which meant that builders would be outbid. But wreckers will hold the lumber, and builders would start turning it into houses for the people of this city.

"In these circumstances I felt justified in telling the Mayor that even a slightly lower bid by builders should be acceptable to the city, as it meant constructive work to relieve a bad situation. I did not want this for myself alone. I was willing other builders should receive the same terms, and that all builders be put on the same plane. But I did object to the competition of the wreckers.

"I wanted to build thirty houses in Dorchester. The lumber was exactly what I needed, and its purchase might have meant the difference between a profitable and unprofitable investment. Such a building campaign by three or four builders would have encouraged others.

"I got no satisfaction and the stands will be wrecked at a slightly greater temporary profit to the city."

Lieutenant Carroll declared that only some such move, which would stir up all the builders to begin operations, would prove the real remedy.

"Prices of material are not going to be much lower," he declared. "That is a fallacy which retards building. Labor is not going to be any cheaper. So the quicker we get started the quicker living conditions will be improved in this city."

Eighty-Seven Percent Increase in This Rent; Assessor Gets Facts

What Chairman Edward T. Kelly of the board of assessors declares to be the most flagrant instance of profiteering yet brought to his notice was revealed in a letter of complaint today from a tenant who declares his rent is to be increased from $20 to $37.50 per month. This is an increase of 87½ per cent.

The landlord defends the increase on the ground that his taxes have been raised and he has to pay a higher rate of interest for the use of money, in a letter which was forwarded with the complaint. Chairman Kelly left his office to make a personal investigation.

The increase is to date from May 31, the landlord states in his letter in which he adds: "You know in property has been increased in valuation and the tax rate increased, as well as the difference in my rate interest."

The flat on which this 87 per ce increase is imminent is said to be located in Dorchester.

LASSIE STAYED WITH ARMY IN ALL DRIVES

Mrs. Springer, Salvation Army Worker, Through Campaign of 1st and 42d Divisions

Bringing back from France another story of heroism such as has immortalized the Salvation Army, Mrs. E. A. Springer, a Salvation Army lassie who served through the Argonne's hell with the First Division, arrived today at the Salvation Army headquarters in Boston.

Pol. "There's not much to tell," she said simply, when reporters met her at headquarters. "I did only what all the Salvation Army lassies did—tried to carry comfort and cheer to the brave boys who won our war, tried to take the place of the others they had left behind. Oh! it was worth it. The gratitude of those boys—all my life I shall cherish it.

"I was attached to the First Division—to the division's field hospital. Of course I am not a trained nurse. But one did not have to be a nurse. Just a mother who had had children of her own. When the wounded were brought in—and there were hundreds upon hundreds of them during the Argonne drive—I helped the doctors undress them. I washed them. I gave what comfort I could to them.

COOKED FOR THE BOYS.

"I went through the drive and at times, when the field hospital was evacuated—the wounded given first aid and taken to the base hospitals in the rear—I would cook for the boys. They would set up a stove for me, perhaps a stove of rocks, wherever we might happen to be, sometimes on the battlefields.

"Then there were times when I sewed for the boys. For always there were buttons gone, uniforms torn and rent by the barbed wire, clevrons missing.

"I stayed with the division until it was relieved by the 42d. I should have retired with the First—my pass accredited me only to the First. But I knew there were other women back of the line to care for the First, none save me to go on with the 42d.

IN ST. MIHIEL DRIVE.

"I was with the 42nd when the First came into the front again, relieving the division that had relieved it. I was with the First through other drives—St. Mihiel, other offensives. After the armistice I went with the Army of Occupation and was stationed at Coblenz. It is from there that I just came."

"Were you under fire much of the time?" a reporter asked.

"Yes," Mrs. Springer replied quietly. "Through the drives shells were bursting every minute—oftener. At first I was frightened. Then I got used to it."

Mrs. Springer has come to Boston to speak in the Salvation Army's one-week campaign for $2,000,000 in New England, which opens next Monday. Immediately afterward she will leave for India, where she was stationed when the war started.

LEGION'S STAND FOR RUM IS CRITICISED

Washington, May 12.—"No patriotic organization will thrive acting as a wet nurse to a discredited and outlaw traffic." This was the assertion today of Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, in a statement rapping the American Legion for its reported stand favoring a resubmission of the national prohibition amendment. The demand for a referendum, Wheeler holds, is inconsistent because the "wets" opposed a referendum on the liquor question in every division of government where it was legal to have it and it gave the people a chance to adopt a wider dry area."

HARRY THOMAS IS DEAD IN BROOKLINE

Boston Newspaper Man Is a Victim of the Influenza and Pneumonia

Harry C. Thomas, until recently editor of the Merchant Mariner, a publication of the United States Shipping Board, and for many years identified with Boston daily newspapers, died at his home, No. 8 Auburn court, Brookline, after a two week's illness. Mr. Thomas was stricken at that time with influenza and pneumonia developed a week ago, which resulted in his death.

Mr. Thomas was born at North Weymouth, forty-four years ago, the son of the late B. Frank and Abbie (French) Thomas. He attended the public schools of that town, graduating from the Weymouth High School, after which he directed his attention to the newspaper profession, "covering" the South Shore for many years for Boston papers.

He later joined the Boston Globe staff, going afterward to the Boston Herald, and for several years was assistant city editor of the Boston American.

About three years ago he resigned his position at the American to accept a position as yachting editor of the Boston Transcript, where he remained for two years, when he came to the Boston Advertiser when purchased by William Randolph Hearst, as city editor, resigning when war was declared and then he went with the United States Shipping Board and soon became the editor of the Merchant Mariner.

Mr. Thomas resigned a few weeks ago, to accept a position as Washington secretary of the Chemical Alliance Association, where he was going when he was stricken.

He is survived by his widow, who, before her marriage, was Miss Rose Thayer of Weymouth, a well-known singer, and his mother. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

KEEP YOUR UMBRELLA HANDY; MORE RAIN

Weather hints for Bostonians. Don't put away the trusty umbrella and rubbers, lay the old Winter coat in moth balls or take off the storm door—for twenty-four hours yet.

There's more rain coming. The skies may clear by tomorrow noon, but until then drizzle and low temperatures.

Only two degrees' difference marked the highest and lowest temperatures in New England at 8 a. m. today. The coldest points were Burlington, Vt., and Greenville, Me., at 42 degrees, and the warmest Boston, Hartford and Nantucket at 44 degrees.

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

FIRST LIST OF UNPAID ALLOTMENT CHECKS

Many Boston Names Among Those Gone Astray Through Incorrect Addresses

As the result of a special arrangement between the Washington Headquarters of the Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Hearst newspapers and General H. M. Lord, Director of Finance of the War Department, the Soldiers' War Service Bureau of the Boston American today publishes the first installment of names of relatives and friends of soldiers to whom voluntary allotments have been paid, and for whom returned checks are now being held in Washington awaiting correct and definite information as to present address of the individuals concerned.

Through the Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American, the Washington authorities invite readers to assist in the present campaign to trace and locate, if possible, individuals entitled to these undelivered checks.

In order to facilitate prompt and accurate information to the War Department, attention is directed to the blank coupon appearing on this page. This blank should be filled out and mailed directly to the Zone Finance Office, Enlisted Allotment Branch, No. 1729 New York avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C., as indicated thereon.

There are approximately ten thousand checks of various amounts awaiting correct and definite information as to present address. The list published in the Boston American will be confined to New England only.

WASHINGTON AUTHORITIES URGENTLY REQUEST THAT OTHER NEWSPAPERS COPY THE LIST APPEARING HEREIN IN ORDER TO FACILITATE IN THE DELIVERY OF THE CHECKS TO PERSONS ENTITLED THERTO.

Since the beginning of the war a small percentage of the checks sent out in payment of allotments by the zone finance office at Washington have been returned by the Postoffice Department, because of inaccurate or insufficient address, or through removals to other places, and failure to notify the department of change of residence.

The zone finance office urgently requests that persons who are entitled to this voluntary allotment, take special care in forwarding to the department correct and sufficient information as to present address, by filling out the accompanying coupon.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

Lieutenant-Colonel Albert Greenlaw was born in Eastport, Me., forty-two years ago and was educated in the public schools of that city. He is unmarried. Entering politics at twenty-one years of age, he rapidly rose in councils of his party (Republican) until he became Mayor of Eastport at twenty-nine. He served two terms as Mayor and later served as postmaster for four years. He also served as chairman of Washington County Republican party organization. For several years he was a member of a fish concern.

When twenty-two years of age he enlisted in the National Guard, and for many years was captain of I Company of Eastport. During 1915 he was adjutant-general of Maine for a short time. In 1916, during the Mexican border trouble, he was captain of a quartermaster company on Colonel Hume's staff.

After the United States declared war against Germany he went to France as captain of the supply company with the 103d Infantry. He was promoted to major after being in France six months. Later he became assistant chief of staff to General Edwards.

Upon his return to the United States in April last he was appointed a member of the Maine Public Utility Commission at a salary of $4,500 a year. Colonel Greenlaw left for St. Louis, Mo., May 5 to assist in organizing the A. E. F.

SECOND CHILD IS VICTIM OF MALADY

Phyllis Connearney Follows Brother in Death of New Disease

Phyllis Connearney, six, is dead at the home of her parents at No. 152 Willow street, Waltham, today, the second victim of the mysterious throat malady which a few days ago claimed her eight-year-old brother, Daniel.

Boston physicians and specialists are baffled in their effort to diagnose the malady which came upon a whole family, excepting the father, James Connearney, with surprising swiftness. The mother and an infant two months old still are ill with the disease, although the attending physicians expect their recovery.

The boy, who was taken ill with the disease on Friday, died within a few hours. No other cases are reported in Waltham, and the doctors believe the disease will be confined to this family. The death certificate in each case was marked "septic sore throat," although physicians agree that the symptoms of this unknown malady differ from the disease to which death was attributed.

BONES OF BABY DUG UP IN CELLAR

Mother Admits Burial—Says Child Was Burned to Death

Newark, N. J., May 12.—Following the unearthing of the bones of a few months old baby in a cellar, the police have arrested Mrs. Albert J. Hanaire. She admits burying the child in the cellar in December but affects not to be excitedly buried to death.

Cremation had been adopted two days before she said it was burned.

Mrs. Hanaire tells the police that the child was formed in a carriage she had left standing for a few minutes in front of a store where she had gone to do some shopping.

How the child was burned she does not know. Thinking the child dead she buried it without telling her husband.

County Physician Warren, who dug up the bones, says it is impossible to tell how whether the body had been burned.

Mrs. Hanaire's mental condition will be examined. She was of childless and wanted to adopt many.

V LOAN IS OVER SUBSCRIBED BY A BILLION

By International News Service.

Washington, May 12.—Over-subscriptions to the Victory Loan will total at least $1,000,000,000, treasury officials predicted. With none of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts having yet submitted complete figures, the war loan organization was unable today to give any definite idea of the amount of over-subscriptions, and it is said likely that the official total will be known before May 26.

Banks have until May 20 to get their reports to the Federal Reserve Banks and the latter have until May 24 to report to the Treasury Department.

Officials today estimated that 15,000,000 Americans bought Victory notes compared with 21,000,000 purchasers in the fourth loan, 17,000,000 in the third loan, 9,000,000 in the second and 4,000,000 in the first.

In the modeling room creditable work is shown by Margaret Sims, Charlotte Cabot, Olivia Watson and Marie Ernst.

SAYS BOY SCOUT IS SAFEGUARD TO WORLD

The Boy Scout movement is an eminent safeguard for the world in these times of unrest, Sir Robert Baden-Powell, their leader and originator, said in addressing scout leaders at the Hotel Bellevue.

The organization teaches boys to use their heads and to find the proper balance in an argument, said Sir Robert.

OFFSET TO STRIKES.

"The Boy Scout has a training that will, for one thing, affset ill-advised strikes," Sir Robert said.

"After a boy has been a scout and has taken active part in the administration of his troop he is infinitely less liable to be led astray by violent soap-box orators."

Sir Robert cited, as a case in point, an occurrence at one of the Boy Scout discussions that are a part of the boys' activities.

"Once the question proposed for a symposium was, 'What Shall We Do With a Rotter?' " explained the general.

"One boy got up from among the great number present and swung all the others with him, amid great applause, by stating that a rotter should be thrown out immediately, like a rotten apple in a barrel of good ones.

ARGUMENT WINS THE DAY.

"As the applause subsided, up jumped an eager-eyed youngster. 'My father is a horse dealer,' he said. 'When he gets a bad horse he puts it in a team with three others, and they pull it straight in no time.'

"This argument effectually squelched the other and won the day," said Sir Robert.

"You see, the boys of each troop are taught to reason and to balance arguments like that. It is inevitable that the good effect lasts through serious difficulties in more weighty moments, when graver issues are at stake."

IS FIRST "REPEATER" TO GET SECOND CHANCE

Portsmouth, N. H., May 12.—For the first time in the history of the United States naval prison, a "repeater" has been restored to full active duty in the service of the navy. The prisoner is Daniel Mullen, who had been sentenced to the "brig" after having been restored to duty following his first sentence.

THE DEAFHEAR

"EVER SINCE CHILDHOOD I HAD NOISES IN MY RIGHT EAR. Ringing noises that were very annoying," said Mrs. Clara Cainin, who resides at 42 Olcott, St., Watertown, Mass. "I HAD BEEN DEAF," she continued, "IN MY RIGHT EAR FOR YEARS. If I closed my left ear I could barely hear sound, but could not understand what the sound meant. I read of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and their generous offer of FREE EXAMINATION AND TREATMENT TO THOSE WHO WERE AFFLICTED WITH EAR TROUBLES. I took advantage of their offer, and as a result I hear again in my right ear and the noises have been banished."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description — CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE, BIRTHMARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

CHAMPIONS OFF FOR WEST

Red Sox and Athletics Game Is Again Halted by Rain

The Red Sox, after their game with the Athletics today was prevented by rain, prepared to leave for the more salubrious climes of the western part of the circuit, and right off the bat will go to the mat with the Chicago White Sox, who are setting the pace for the rest of the league.

This series, first of a swing that will carry the Red Sox to St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia before they come home, should have an important bearing on the race. It will, at least, give a reasonable line on just how good are the Kidgiesons.

The local bunch had hit its stride before the wintry elements and things like that washed baseball off the map here. Those Red Sox pitchers are all pitching and the stonewall defence is stonewalling. The team isn't hitting much, but then it never did.

It is winning games, however, the main thing. The tilt with Chicago, accordingly, should be enlightening. Gleason & Co. have been mopping up all Western opposition with great regularity. The White Sox are admittedly one of the strongest teams in the league and their flying start hasn't weakened them a bit.

SLAB STAFF IS O. K.

Eddie Cicotte has won a quartet of games already, and is blazing the path for the rest of the staff in a manner that to date has brought joy to the denizens of windy Windy City.

Since Ray Caldwell came through for the Red Sox, though, and Joe Bush's arm has found its ancient cunning—as reports from the front state—the Champions have more than enough good pitching to get along with.

Barry, playing as great a game as he ever did, and Witt, having strength-ened third base wonderfully, the great Fenway infields of yore haven't had a thing on the present cordon of defenders, thus far.

The series that starts in Chicago Wednesday finds the Red Sox in a position to pass the leaders if they can clean up three games in a row. They now perch some two and a half games from the crest, not at all a bad place at this stage of things.

PLAY 21 ON ROAD.

On the trip the Red Sox play three in Chicago, four in St. Louis, the same in Detroit, three in Cleveland, four in Philly and the final three at the Capital. They are away until June 5, when they come back to open up a long stretch with the Westerners.

If the games already played offer any comparison of the Red Sox as a road and a home club, the trip into the wilds shouldn't have any terrors for the champions. Thus far, Boston has won four out of the five on alien pastures, and three out of six on the home lot.

Being a veteran club, playing away or at home, is more or less the same thing, anyhow.

While all this is going on, the Braves will be at home trying to find their long lost habit of winning every so often. Rumors of trades continue to fly through the air, but G. Stallings keeps putting up the same battlefront whenever the weather permits.

TWO OLD HUB FAVORITES STARRING WITH MACKS

Scott Perry, one of game's best young right-handers. He was a Brave for a short while in '17.

Tillie Walker, one of the ball-dom's home-run kings. He did a good job in Tris Speaker's old pasture on Jack Barry's '17 machine.

TED LEWIS TO RETURN TO RING ON MAY 23

New York, May 12.—Ted (Kid) Lewis' first battle since he lost his title to Jack Britton will be with Willie (Knockout) Loughlin at the American A. A., Baltimore, May 23. They will travel over the fifteen-round course to a decision. Lewis has fully recovered from his recent illness, he states.

Baseball News and Notes

Art Nehf, all-wool-and-a-yard-wide Southpaw, reached Boston from Philadelphia early today. The chances are he will open the St. Louis series.

The Giants gave the Dodgers an oldtime drubbing. Cadore and Mamaux were the Brooklyn pitchers pulverized, while Causey uncorked a nifty four-hit game. Konetchy alone had a big day for the Flatbush Flyers. Doyle, with two singles and a double, and Benda Kauff, with a single and homer, were the swat leaders.

Hod Eller of Pat Moran's Reds, turned in the first no-hit game of the season. The Cardinals were the team he baffled. Hod gave three free passes and Bill Rariden out two of the runners down stealing.

Kid Gleason used Carl Williams making two out of three over the Feble. The lanky southpaw, one of the Red Sox's old hoodoos, had a soap winning, so soft was Kid Uble, and now won't bust into the big series until late in the week.

That was a sweet tilt Walter Johnson and Jack Quinn had on the Polo Grounds. It went twelve innings to a 0-0 tally and only called "game the 6 o'clock whistle blew. The Sunday pastime must cease at that hour under New York's new law.

Johnson only yielded two hits and Quinn twelve. Peckinpaugh punched Hon. Walter for a safety with one down in the first. No other Yankee reached first until Baker got a free ticket in the tenth.

Catcher Hank Severeid of the Browns is on the disabled list. He was cut down at the home plate by Flagstead, the Tigers' kid outfielder.

Ty Cobb had a good day at the expense of Shocker, Koob and Lowdermilk of the clan of Jaines Barks. He belted out three safe ones, including a triple; scored two runs and stole a base.

Mail all contributions in treasurer of the fund, Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil, Pocasset Trust Company, No. 82 Devonshire street. All are asked to give their suggestions as to what would be the best testimonial to give Gowdy.

Today's story on the Hank Gowdy testimonial was written by a marine who was wounded at Chateau-Thierry.

The soldier of the sea came into the American office to secure some information as we were about to tell the world a few more facts about baseball's great war hero.

We asked the marine if he knew of the Gowdy testimonial. When he replied he did, we requested that he write a few paragraphs telling the fans why the baseball fans of Boston and New England should contribute to it. Here is what the marine dashed off:

"If the baseball fans care anything about a real fighter, they'll make the Gowdy testimonial a success. Hank, like thousands of other Americans, went to France to fight against Germany because our country needed men.

"During the long months I was in France I saw men die and suffer all kinds of privations. Gowdy was among those who put up with hardship and risked death. He was with the gallant Rainbow Division which came to the assistance of the marines and civilization at Chateau-Thierry.

"During the war against Germany many a marine and doughboy asked his Buddy what the people back home thought of our efforts. At times we wondered if they would appreciate the sacrifices we were making.

FITTING TO HONOR HANK.

"Since returning home I have found that the American people have not forgotten what we did. The Gowdy testimonial offers them an opportunity to show what they think of us fighting men. By honoring Hank the fans will be able to pay tribute to every American soldier and marine.

"May the fund go over the top like Gowdy and the rest of us did when we were in France."

The following letter from the Victory Novelty Company, No. 186 Washington street, explains itself:

"Hank Gowdy, Care the American.

"Dear Sir—We are taking great pleasure in sending you one of our Victory Frames for your honorable discharge from the United States service. This frame will overcome the perplexing situation that surely puzzles you, as well as many others, as to how to show your enlistment record, as well as your discharge. This frame shows plainly both dates.

"We hope this gift which we are presenting through the American will please you. Our little company consists of young men who were in the United States service.

"VICTORY NOVELTY COMPANY,
"By Richard M. Altmann."

MAY 24 IS BIG DAY.

Gowdy Day will not be held until Saturday, May 24. The American's contest for two box seats for that day is still open to fans sending in a contribution. The prize goes to the person making the best suggestion as to what would make a suitable gift for the great Brave catcher.

Our friend, the marine, suggests this as a battle cry:

"Follow me over the top for Hank Gowdy!"

Who is there with red blood in his veins who will fail to heed the summons of one who offered his all for us while fighting with the soldiers of the sea!

"Nobody!" comes back the answer.

Then, boys, let's go and get in your contributions early.

SIR BARTON TO RUN IN PREAKNESS WEDNESDAY

Baltimore, Md., May 12 — Vindex, Eternal and Sir Carton are coming East from Louisville, where they started in the Kentucky Derby, and on Wednesday they will meet Dunboyne, Tercenta and other fast three-year-olds in the rich Preakness Stakes at Pimlico. Billy Kelly and Ike Frank cannot start, as all geldings are barred from this important race, which now gives promise of being worth $25,000 to the winner.

Shifts in Yale Nine

New Haven, May 12—Head Coach Will Lauder is completing the first general shake-up of the Yale nine this year. The entire infield, right field and the catcher's position are involved. Yale's defense by Tufts and Brown caused Lauder to decide upon the changes. Of the infield, Second Baseman Tom Sawyer is the only member who has retained his place, while Catcher Cal Holmes had been switched to first base.

STALLINGS' MEN AGAIN HALTED BY RAIN

Philadelphia, May 12.—The Braves and Phillies were halted by rain again today. The poor weather here has been a big disappointment to Manager Stallings of the Boston outfit, who had hopes of getting his team going at a merry clip.

The Braves leave here tonight for Boston, where they will open a long home stay tomorrow with the Cardinals as their opponents. With morning practice each day, Stallings has hopes of getting a little more batting strength. His infield will also benefit by a little more work.

The lack of men who could deliver a winning smash with the old bludgeon has held back the Stallings entry.

Coombs is handicapped with a weak pitching staff and, consequently, has been working his few good hurlers out of turn. The four days' rest will serve to rejuvenate these tiring toilers.

With the Braves the case is different. Stallings has no glaring lack of twirlers, but the team has lost its games by the ragged brand of ball they have been playing.

It is not likely that Stallings will work Hank Gowdy for a few days as the doughboy catcher is not yet in shape for active service behind the bat.

It took the Braves ten innings to beat Jack Dunn's Birds, over in Baltimore, but six runs off Southpaw Kroniech in the extra frame made it easy. From the fourth inning on the tally was knotted at 1 all. Scott relieved McQuillan after the fourth and did not yield a hit the six rounds he was on the mound.

The big fellow tore off two clean hits. That was Red Smith's contribution, while Rolke turned in three.

ARMY-NAVY FOOTBALL GAME FOR NEW YORK

New York, May 12.—The Army and Navy football game of 1919 will be played at the Polo Ground on Saturday, November 29.

Final arrangements were made at the offices of the New York Baseball Club between Captain Ridgway, representing the military academy; Commander MacWharter, representing the naval academy, and John B. Foster, for the New York Baseball Club.

B. U. GIRLS ARE KEPT BUSY IN ATHLETICS

Baseball, cricket, tennis and swimming are the forms of athletics in which Boston University girls are indulging to meet the requirements in physical instruction demanded by Miss Rachel L. Hardwick.

Beginning this week each girl student at the College of Liberal Arts who takes physical instruction, must devote the two hours weekly, usual spent in gymnastics in Rhoads gymnasium, to some kind of sport.

The Girls' Athletic Association of the College of Liberal Arts will hold a tennis tournament the end of the month and will award a silver loving cup to the winner. The girls practice on the Jarvis Field courts, Cambridge.

Twenty-four students have stood up for the tournament, for which the preliminaries will begin at once.

TITLE-HOLDER ENTERED.

Three girls will be up for the semi-finals and by lottery one of these will be drawn for the finals. The other two girls will go off the semi-finals and the winner will play the girl drawn by lottery.

Miss Miriam L. Spaulding, '3, of, Worcester, title-holder, is trying to retain this year. She is president of the G. A. A.

The girls will have to play baseball in the gymnasium because the courtyard used formerly is being used by workmen in connection with the alterations which have begun at the College of Liberal Arts building.

Cricket is proving a passing novelty to the girls. They are enthusiastic over this sport, which is popular with their cousins across the water.

SWIMMING CLASS CALLED.

The swimming tank, on which alterations have been made, will be ready for use this week.

The girls who do not know how to swim will be given the opportunity to learn, while the students already familiar with the sport will find enjoyment in swimming and diving in the indoor tank at the College of Liberal Arts.

The basketball season is over. The Juniors won the Interclass championship for the fourth successive time by two games. Miss Christina S. Little of East Boston captained the victorious team.

RICKARD FAVORS JACK SKELLY TO REFEREE

By TOM THORP

New York, May 12—News that Promoter Tex Rickard insists that Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey select a referee for the world's heavyweight championship bout at Toledo on July 4, has brought scores of telegrams and telephone calls from the best known ring officials in the country.

So numerous have these messages become during the past few days that Rickard has instructed his assistants to inform the applicants for the job that the fighters themselves are to make the selection.

It is only in the event that they cannot come to an agreement that Rickard will name the referee.

In such a case it is likely that Jack Skelly, all-time favorite, will get the assignment.

Ever since ebb his match was first talked about Skelly has been much in the limelight. He has been close to Rickard in many transactions connected with the staging of the big fight.

CLOSETED WITH RICKARD.

He accompanied Rickard to Weehawken when the promoter signed up Jack Dempsey in the West Shore Railroad ferryhouse and witnessed the document. Saturday he was closeted with Rickard for more than a half-hour.

While it was impossible to get a word from either Rickard or Skelly as to what transpired at their meeting, it is known that the question of Jack acting as the third man in the ring was discussed.

Should Skelly be selected as referee the fight will be officiated in a competent and courageous manner. Old-time ring followers will remember Skelly for the many fine battles he put up when a boxing favorite.

His memorable scrap with George Dixon, the greatest lightweight of all time, is still talked about in fistic circles.

Few fighters in their day ever enjoyed the same amount of popularity as Skelly did. Whenever he appeared in ring togs a fight worth witnessing was sure to take place.

GOOD ARBITER NEEDED.

The fact that the bout is limited to twelve rounds makes it absolutely necessary that Rickard procure a referee competent to raise the hand of the winner should both fighters be on their feet at the conclusion of the twelfth stanza.

A man of Skelly's experience as a fighter and ring official would be fully competent to render a fair and impartial decision. An inexperienced official would probably muddle up affairs.

Rickard has received word that Dempsey is on his way from Excelsior Springs, Mo., to Toledo. The big Salt Lake City challenger is taking a corps of trainers and handlers with him.

Harvard Cub Nines Play

Two Harvard nines were scheduled to get into action this afternoon. The freshmen were to call on St. Mark's School at Southboro, while the second team was programmed to battle Middlesex School at Concord.

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT

This is the 25th of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett is writing concerning the pugilistic career of Jake Kilrain, one of the greatest heavyweights that America or any other country ever produced.

Jake Kilrain made his debut in pugilistic "fast company" early in 1884, when he clashed with Charlie Mitchell, the great English battler.

Prior to that time Jake had been fighting men who are classed as little more than third raters. But his splendid showing against them convinced the sporting world that the country boy was destined for higher things.

They gave to Jake his first big chance against the Briton in a four-rounder in Boston on March 27, 1884.

Kilrain attempted his old rushing in and swinging away tactics on Mitchell. But he couldn't break down the defense of the Englishman. Mitchell proved too clever for Kilrain, and in a battle filled with action from start to finish the best Kilrain could get was a draw. But even such a verdict was a distinct triumph for Jake.

Kilrain's Work Against Mitchell Wins Praise.

"Kilrain's showing against the scientific Mitchell showed that he is coming along with giant strides and in the none too distant future he will be a dangerous rival of John L. Sullivan's," predicted a writer at the time.

Kilrain's next battle was against Mike Cleary at New York on June 26, 1884—a contest replete with sensational incidents.

Cleary was one of the most terrific hitters in the business. Neither man was fleshy as to-day. Each was of the bruising type. And when the crowd gathered for the fistic clash its sentiment was that the "brat man who gets home a real punch wins."

Almost before the echo of the call for time had died away, Kilrain, leaping at Cleary, drove a savage right to the stomach. Cleary wabbled. Jake, realizing the advantage he had gained, followed quickly with a right-hander to the jaw. Kilrain kept after Cleary all through the first and had him reduced to a bleeding, battered human wreck when the round ended. Only the superb gameness and great stamina of Cleary carried him through the other three rounds.

It was Kilrain's fight all the way, but the referee—Billy Edwards—announced a draw, while the crowd, taking a look at the almost unmarked Kilrain and then at the battered, staggering hulk that was Cleary, hissed, booed and shrieked "robber."

Police Prevent Jake From Scoring Knockout Blow

Police prevented Kilrain from scoring via the knockout route over Jack Burke, "the Irish Lad. Thty met in a five-rounder in Boston on December 1, 1884, with all the physical advantages in favor of Kilrain. Jake planned to crush Burke to the mat by the sheer fury of a first-round attack and practically succeeded. As the opening session ended, Burke was in a pitiful condition.

It seemed unlikely that he could weather another round of the Kilrain attack. But he wasn't asked to. With the end of the first round the police jumped into the ring. Their intent was to stop the fight. But such a roar of displeasure went up from the assemblage that the police compromised by ruling that the battle could go on, but that all "roughness" must be eliminated.

The rest of the affair was ping-pong entertainment. None but "love taps" were exchanged. The referee, at his conclusion, called the match a draw—probably upon orders from the police.

Immediately afterwards Kilrain proposed to Burke that they meet in a fight-to-a-finish bout in some other city "for any side bet you name." But Burke, realizing that in meeting Kilrain he was overmatched, refused.

Terrific Punch Gave Him Advantage Over Opponents.

Kilrain's activities in 1885 embraced four battles. Three resulted in knockout victories. He put William Sheriff, "the Prussian," to sleep in two rounds, knocked out Jerry Murphy, a giant, in the same number of rounds, and battered John Mc-Glynn into unconsciousness in a four-rounder in New Bedford. His other fight was a four-round draw with George Fryer, an English battler.

And then came 1886—the year during which Kilrain won every battle in decisive fashion, established his greatness, and paved the way to his championship match with Jim Smith and the immortal John L.

Boxing News and Notes

Bob McKirdy has arranged another all star card for the Commercial A. C. for Friday night. Pasy DeLuca will meet Pal Reed in the feature number. Young Eddy of New York and Billy Duffy, Everett puncher, clash in another ten-round whirl. The third ten-round contest will bring together Baz Silva of Gloucester and Johnny Veio of Chicago.

The curtain raiser will be between George Brooks of Lowell and Young Cahill who hails from Everett.

With Benny Valger, French flash, and Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford, listed to meet in the feature bout of twelve rounds tomorrow night, the Armory A. A. has one of the best lightweight attractions offered Boston fans in many months.

Valger has a large following. His brilliant work in the ring entitles him to recognition. In his latest start he handled Artie Root an artistic drubbing at Cleveland.

Britt will undoubtedly go to the post a betting favorite. There will be many fans, however, who will trail along with Valger.

The semi-final tussle of eight rounds between Freddie Madden and Phil Christie should be a lively affair.

Walter Butler, Beachmont welterweight, will try and dispose of Chick West of Holyoke, at Lynn Thursday night. As West has been traveling a merry clip, it looks as though there are a few breakers ahead for Butler.

A large number of entries have been received for the Massachusetts boxing championships, which will be held at the Commercial A. C. Wednesday night under the auspices of the St. Joseph's T. A. S. Tickets may be secured at room 9, No. 28 School street, or No. 95 Cambridge street.

Young Sacco wants the welkinown universe to know he is prepared to give battle to Charley Parker, Harry Carlson or any of the other New England lightweights.

JOHNNY WILSON FACES TARTAR IN FISHER

Ringside's Selections.

Young Fisher to beat Johnny Wilson.

Johnny Buckley to beat Dan McCormack.

Magiorie LaBelle to beat Kid Green.

Frank Ducey, the young man with the silvery tongue, was accompanied by a flock of Joys as he paraded through Newspaper Row today.

The celebration was due to the fact that the sorrel topped announcer has a newcomer to introduce to the fans at the Fenway A. A. tonight.

We refer to Young Fisher, Syracuse middleweight, who is booked to clash with Johnny Wilson of Charlestown in the feature-bout of twelve rounds at the Back Bay club.

Master Ducey says it grows very monotonous watching the same boxers make their cute little bows week after week, and it is a treat to him when a new face puts in an appearance.

Now you will know the reason for the decorations if Frank appears at the Park Riding School tonight wearing a bouquet of violets and doiled out in a dress suit. After gazing upon his scenery, you will have the privilege of viewing Fisher perform against Wilson.

From all reports, it looks as though the Syracuse youth is one of the best boxing prospects in the East. Our own Tommy Robson is numbered among Fisher's victims. These two worthies have clashed twice, in the first occasion honors were even. In their last start Fisher grabbed off all the gold pieces.

At that, the hectic youth who bets his entire bankroll on Fisher stands a chance of missing a couple of meals tomorrow, as Wilson is several hundred miles ahead of the also-ran class. Johnny showed in the feature bout at the Fenway club last week and silenced himself by handing Pat McCarthy a sound drubbing.

The Charlestown puncher has met quite a few boxers in his day who were boomed as coming champions. And, it may be related, has removed most of them. He is so unkind as to assert that our visitor from Syracuse will receive similar treatment this a m.

Dan McCormack, East Boston lightweight, and Johnny Buckley of South Boston will do it all over again in the semi-final bout of ten rounds, according to the well-known powers that be at the Fenway club.

Last week's show McCormack won a hairline decision over his South Boston rival.

Magiorie La Belle will be seen in action against Kid Green, while a couple of the six stanza boys will try and round out a perfect evening.

As for Frank Ducey, he will be as busy as Babe Ruth was the other day down in Baltimore when he busted out four home runs in a regulation ball game.

TONIGHT'S CARD OF BOUTS.

Young Fisher vs. Johnny Wilson, Dan McCormack vs. Johnny Buckley, Magiorie La Belle vs. Kid Green, Joe Coughlin vs. Frank Ross, at Fenway A. A., Park Riding Academy, 8:15 p. m.

Lew Tendler vs. Cal Delaney, Joe Tiplits vs. Packey Hommey, at Philadelphia.

Johnny Tillman vs. Jack Britton, at Baltimore.

Willie Meehan vs. Billy Miske, at Newark, N. J.

Tommy Robson vs. Rody McDonald, at Toronto.

Charley Shepard vs. Bobby North, at Jersey City.

Harry Greb vs. Battling Leylasky, at Canton, Ohio.

JAMAICA RINGS UP '19 CURTAIN THURSDAY

By ED CURLEY

New York, May 12—Racing—the sport that holds all records for furnishing thrills—will return to this vicinity Thursday down at the Jamaica course.

Opening at Jamaica doesn't bring about all the superlatives that generally attend the bursting forth of the season.

Just the same, the raising of the curtain receives the applause of the turf world in as liberal a manner as if the scene was staged at the mammoth Belmont Park.

The same horses race there; the same folks attend; the cheering is just as thunderous, and the finishes are just as thrilling.

To welcome the sport in a fitting manner, the Paumonok Handicap will be the feature opening day. This is a six-furlong sprint, and from the list of potential starters will vibrate with thrills from start to the wire.

Practically every good sprinter of note is expected to jog to the post under silks.

What will make this event more than interesting is that the highly-touted class of three-year-olds will be able to show their real class.

As everyone predicts, the three-year-olds will dominate the season in the big handicaps and stakes. That, however, remains to be seen.

In this division are Under Fire, Queen, Pigeon Wing, Hannibal, Thunderstorm, Pen Rose, Purchase, Houtledge and a few others of renown.

In that gathering are a number of fleet-footed thoroughbreds, and no matter how many of them face the barrier a real dust of speed is in prospect.

For the older division we can note Fatty Wandt, Bully Boy, Pepo, Hollister, War Cloud, Motor Cop, Flags, Sunny Slope, Naturalist, Old Rosebud and Dominant.

These veterans have all shown what they could do over the short route, and most of them have been keyed up at the track around Maryland.

Mix up the two classes, and one couldn't wish for a more exciting battle.

Tennis World's King Is Suspended by National Body

New York, May 12—Vincent Richards, the sixteen-year-old Yonkers schoolboy, who holds six American national tennis championships, has been suspended from all tournament play by the United States Lawn Tennis Association on the charge of commercializing his name.

The barring of Richards becomes effective at once and will continue until he may be able to convince the tennis authorities he has corrected the infringements of the rules governing amateurism with which he is charged.

Beginning last August, Richards started his career in championship titles by winning the national outdoor doubles with W. T. Tilden.

At Forest Hills he won the national boys' singles and junior doubles with Harold Taylor.

At the indoor championships in the Seventh Regiment, in this city, Richards captured the national junior and senior singles, and the senior doubles with Tilden as partner.

Frank Gillespie to Return

Frank Gillespie of Chicago, will lead the field in the B. A. A. Marathon for twenty-three miles, has entered the modified Marathon, that will be held on Russell Field, Cambridge, in connection with the Knights of St. Pinbar field day.

WITH THE SCHOOLBOYS

Newton moved into second place by beating Everett, leaders in the Suburban League race. Medford and Somerville High are the other two teams in the first division.

Steve Patten and Barker, first-string pitchers on the Somerville nine, are showing tip-top form.

Augusin's clever pitching against Commerce put Bill Pendergast's team at the top in the City League. He sent fourteen men back to the bench in the strike-out route.

Owen, star outfielder on the New-ton nine, took charge of the difficult corner in the absence of Kerrigan, and did a good job. At the bat he poled two hits, one a long triple.

Jim Connelly, Woburn's star 1,000-yard runner, is working out at the stadium for the outdoor meets. Dana Burnham, formerly of Huntington School and Exeter, is also in training and expects to come through with a big year.

Al Ripley, captain of the Dorchester High nine, is showing good class at short. He also directs his nine in masterly fashion.

The Kemp, Boston College High's reliable first baseman, made his second pitching debut in two years when he hobbled in the game with Concord. They don't make 'em much straighter than this juvenile.

Lashaway, English High twirler, is playing in tough luck this season. Twice he has held his opponents to two hits and once through the inability of his mates to come through with any blows in the pinch.

Farrer is still going strong. The veteran Boston-Latin twirler had been added to the record and it is on its way to break it. This time the record for straight victories for prep schools.

Gene Hussey, Hyde Park runner, per excellence, is also there when it comes to pitching.

Lanigan, star outfielder on the Dorchester High nine, is regarded as the bases in the game with timeout stealing second third and home was the big stunt he pulled.

RAY TO MAKE BID FOR MILE MARK OUTDOORS

Philadelphia, May 12—A leading feature of the Meadowbrook track meet, programmed for Franklin Field June 7, is expected to be the John W. Overton memorial mile run, in which Jon Ray has been asked to try for a world's record.

Charles Stout of Chicago and Ivan Meyer, who was at Overton's heels when the latter made his indoor mile record, will also compete.

SAMUEL BENT, SOMERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL.

SAM BENT, third baseman on the Somerville High nine, is causing a great deal of notice by his sensational playing at the hot corner. His hitting is also above the ordinary and makes Sam a particularly valuable man to his team. This is his second year on the nine and he has two to go.

HARVARD FRONT SWITCHED FOR TIGER GAME

Coach Hugh Duffy plans to rearrange his Harvard lineup for the contest with Williams Wednesday. The veteran coach is at a loss to account for the poor showing of his crimson nine, although now well aware of the weakness of the pitching staff.

When the twirlers are going well, Boswell, Hollers, takes a day off and throws the ball all over the lot. The result is the Cantabrigians have lost four victories in nine attempts.

The team appears to be composed of good players and some clever strikers, but get stuffed on a "hoodoo" that is hard to shake.

MURPHY TOO GOOD.

Seven of the nine men who started in the Intercollegiate game Saturday scored safe hauls of batting averages over .300. Cuddy Murphy, the big three pitcher, ran that all of them trimmed downward when he batted a six inning, no-hit, no-run game.

Ken Perkins, the slashing third baseman, continues to throw the ball recklessly about the lot, and Duffy may place the Pacific Coaster in the outfield when Tom Meehan reports again. Ken's arm is another best infielder, but he hasn't been in action enough to show his real ability.

Higelow and Knowles appear to have clinched their outfield posts, and Frothingham is hanging on.

NEED FIRST-BACKER.

The first base situation still looks pretty bad and Jeff Jones or Jimmy Hayes may get a chance on the bag, allowing Blake, the big hard-hitting catcher to get behind the bat.

It is about time Babe Ruth, commonly spoken of as Harvard's "ace," got a start, for Coach Duffy will send him against Princeton in the Jumbo Saturday.

Patten had all the earmarks when at Milton Academy, but since being discharged from the army he's finding it hard to get fit. Then, he had an attack of the flu, which retarded his development.

The Heart Breaker

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

A PRESENT DAY AMERICAN ROMANCE

Being an Interesting Tale of Love and Cross-Purposes of Two Sisters and a Man

CHAPTER LXXVII.

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

THE evening papers contained the statement that Thomas Chandler was out of danger from the bullet wound. He had been allowed to see his wife for a few minutes. When young Mrs. Chandler left the hospital she acknowledged that all divorce proceedings had been dropped.

"There was a foolish mistake somewhere," she had declared.

Honora read this bit of news with mingled feelings of relief and disgust. Apparently the whole scandal had died a natural—or unnatural—death. Perhaps the end had been hastened by some of Dr. Chandler's money. He had enough to be able to spare a goodly amount to save his son's reputation.

That page was turned down and sealed so far as Mildred was concerned. Honora was devoutly thankful.

She had recently acquired too much wisdom to mention the painful topic in chatting to Mildred while she dressed for the Hilton dinner. Therefore she was startled when the girl remarked casually:

"I see that Tom Chandler's going to get well. So there's been a great deal of gossip over a trifling matter. I am glad I was not foolish enough to let myself get excited over it."

Yet only forty-eight hours ago this young creature had waited in the Fairlands station for Tom Chandler. Now she looked as pretty as if she had never had a care. There was not a line nor a wrinkle in her face. No wonder people thought her lovely. She was almost beautiful at times. And this was one of the times.

"Good-bye," she said airily, as, after surveying herself in the mirror, she threw her evening cloak about her. "Mrs. Hilton promised that her car would call for me at a quarter of seven, and it is just that now. Ah!" glancing from the window, "there it is already—the limousine, please observe! I say, Honora, some class to me—isn't it?"

She Laughed Merrily

She laughed merrily and ran downstairs.

Thoughtfully Honora took off her own office dress and started to put on another gown. In the act of fastening this garment—a neat dress of dark blue silk—she paused. Why should she not look her prettiest tonight? Arthur was going away soon. She had a right to have him carry with him a recollection of her at her best.

When she appeared below stairs fifteen minutes later, she wore a soft, filmy creation of an exquisite shade of rose pink. The gown was a favorite one with Mrs. Higgins, who smiled her approbation.

She wished that Mrs. Higgins could think of Arthur as unconnected with Mildred. The broken engagement had evidently made a deep impression.

But the widow's next words were soothing. "I have been thinking a lot about Arthur and Mildred," she confessed, "and I have been remembering back a ways. I can see that, after all, that affair was only a passing fancy of Arthur's. There was a time when you and he seemed to be much closer friends than Mildred and he were."

"We have always been good friends," Honora admitted.

"Yes, I know, and you probably always will be. And that is worth much more than the fancy roused by a pretty face or such a coquettish manner as Mildred has. I am fond of the child—very fond of her, as you know—but she is not stable like you. And you are sure of Arthur's friendship."

The words recurred to the girl several times during the evening while her caller and she talked earnestly and confidentially.

Yes, she was sure of his friendship, yet there was something in his manner that made her heart beat fast, something that did not seem to be mere friendship.

A Thankful Arthur

No mention was made of Mildred until just before Arthur was leaving.

"I wish I could stay longer," he said wistfully. "But it has been such a wonderful evening, here alone with you, that I do not want to mar it by lingering until somebody comes in and interrupts us. By the way, where is Mildred?"

Honora explained to her sister's whereabouts. To her surprise, Arthur smiled amusedly.

"It's good to be like Milly," Honora said quickly. "For experiences do not hurt her. I am not as wise as she."

"Thank goodness," he exclaimed. "Mildred has not the power of making people care long, either."

"Arthur!" Honora reproved. "That does not sound nice coming from you."

"I can't help it! I confess I was desperately in love with her. But it was not the kind of love that lasts."

"How do you know?"

"Because her dismissal of me does not hurt me now a bit. If it had been you who had broken off our friendship, for instance, I do not think I could bear it, dear. That's the difference."

After which he said good night hastily and took his departure. It was almost as if he were afraid to let himself say more.

CHAPTER LXXVIII.

WEEKS passed, and Harold Hilton lingered in Fairlands. Mildred reported that his departure for Canada was to be delayed for a while yet. He was a frequent caller at the Brent home, and Honora kept in Mildred's good graces by absenting herself at these visits. She would come into the drawing-room, greet the caller, then plead some work that needed her attention and return to her own or Mrs. Higgins' room.

Once the housekeeper commented on this fact. "Don't you like Mildred's friend, my dear?" she asked.

"Yes; as far as I can judge he is a very nice fellow. Although I cannot see that he is so fascinating as Milly thinks. But he is her friend, not mine. So I make myself popular by staying out of the way."

Mrs. Higgins raised her eyebrows doubtfully, but said nothing. She regretted Arthur's absence. She was sure that his friendship was a good thing for Honora.

For Arthur had been in camp for over a month, and Honora seldom mentioned him to anyone except his mother, upon whom she called frequently and whose loneliness she tried to lessen. Had Arthur been at home she would have felt some hesitation in going so often to his house. As it was, she found a vague comfort in being with his mother.

Honora missed Arthur more than she would have thought possible. He wrote to her regularly—brief, friendly letters. For some reason—which she could not explain to herself—she did not mention these epistles to Mrs. Bruce. The parent also heard regularly from her young soldier.

The fact that Harold Hilton was still lame made it all right for him to ask Mildred to go driving with him every Sunday, seated in the rear of the big car that was driven by Mr. Hilton's chauffeur, the young people would take long jaunts. Sometimes Mr. and Mrs. Hilton went with them; oftener they went alone.

At last the day came when Mildred told her sister that she was engaged to Harold Hilton.

"We do not want any one to know of it until he has written to his people in Canada," she said, "of course, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton are not a bit surprised."

"They could hardly be," Honora rejoined smilingly. "I am very happy for you, little sister."

Then, timidly, she asked the question that she had asked Mildred about two other men.

"Dear, do you love him?"

"Indeed I do!" Mildred declared. "He is so clever and so brave and interesting."

Hat Shapes to Trim

By Rita Stuyvesant

IT is most interesting to see what a clever girl can do with a ready-to- wear hat shape, and how lovely it can be when she selects artistic trimmings that harmonize. The shops are showing numerous tables of smart hat shapes and there are many girls who do not take advantage of the offering. In it surprising what good looking hats I have seen, made up from a straw shape combined with a pert wing or a gay bunch of posies.

A big, rough straw shape in dust color did not appear very attractive thrown on a "bargain" table with hundreds of others, for a dollar forty-nine. But after it had been trimmed it was entitled to rank with the much more expensive millinery. The shape was faced with an excellent quality taffeta in a matching shade of dust color. It was carefully wired around the edge and could be bent into a becoming poke effect. Around the crown was a crushed band of the taffeta and a bunch of tan and yellow buds nestled with dull leaves at the right side of this lovely Spring hat. Only a half yard of silk at seventy-five cents was needed, and flowers costing seventy-five cents for the half bunch, making the entire hat cost less than three dollars.

To wear with a blue serge cape, there was a blue straw tam of piquant charm and curled quill. A becoming buckram shape was purchased for 65 cents, and ten yards of navy blue straw at 15 cents per yard was required to cover it. The straw was started at the centre top and sewed in circles, row after row, until the entire shape was covered. A curled blue quill, a shade lighter than the hat, was set on the top at a sharp angle. And this smart hat cost only $2.80, the cost of the quill being 75 cents.

For dress-up occasions there is a beautiful hat in purple woven straw that could be easily copied. The shape was rather large and droopy and the edge was bound with grosgrain ribbon in a little deeper shade of purple. In close profusion clustering around the crown were beautifully shaded tea roses and shining green rose leaves. This makes a striking hat to wear with soft afternoon frocks.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

OUR NECESSITIES

THE maiden says: "I do not plead for costly gear and rare; but you can understand my needs. I've such a thing to wear, I need a coat, a dress or two and hats both large and small; I need a dozen pairs of shoes, I need a parasol; I need a box of diamond rings, I need some henna hair; I need a pair of peacock wings, a bobbie auto, dear. All I ought most any heart would touch, tears from a stone 'twould squeeze. Besides I do not ask for much, these are necessities." And so it runs, whate'er folks want is a necessity; some cannot live without a jaunt some thrilling night to see, and others go sans bed and board, yet keep two parrakeets, while some fine diamonds can afford, but seldom baths. Now I don't think such fripperies within that class belong, and when I say necessities, I mean a bit of sky between the blue of Heaven's sky, the glint of golden light, the welcome in a loved one's eye, the starshine through the night. I mean the perfume of the rose, the love trill of the lark, the fragrance of the garden-close when daylight fades to dark. I mean the truth for friend or foe, the cheery word each day, the faith whatever wind may blow some joy my way. I mean the hope that hope is strong, through stormy skies and seas, too wise for hate, too sure for wrong, these are necessities!

No Wonder!

Mrs. Jobling: "I don't know what is the matter with this clock, but it won't go." Her husband looked at it, then oiled it and blew in it with the bellows, but it would not go, and he went to bed. The next morning his wife said: "Henry, I know what is the matter with the clock." "Well, what?" asked her husband. "It wants winding!" she said.

The Mystery of Life

By Garrett P. Serviss

IS matter inert or is it eternally charged with life, or the possibility of entering into new combinations and producing new forms?

Is there inorganic life as well as organic, and if so what does the one begin and the other end?

Where did the first germ of life come from, and how did it assimulate to itself a material body?

I have heard it said that Prof. Loeb claims to have produced life in his laboratory, using only matter. Is this true?

ARTHUR ECKENBERG.

Life is like an axiom in that every logical proposition is a self-evident in its nature, but to explain it logically by rigid analysis is very difficult, if not impossible. To speak of "inorganic life" is a contradiction in terms, since the words "organic" and "inorganic" were invented for the purpose of distinguishing between living and non-living things.

It is true that if it can ever be proved that life is only the product, or result, of the operation of chemical and physical forces a continuity will be established between the reactions that go on in the inorganic world and the processes of life in the organic world, and then it will only remain to link them up logically so that we can trace clearly the intervening steps. But this, I think, is very far from having been done.

The manner of origin of life is still a mystery that has not been satisfactorily explained. Once started in the cell, or germ, life goes on in ways that can be controlled, but experiment has, up to the present, entirely failed to develop new life from non-living matter.

As to the source from which the first germ of life came, I have never been able to see the necessity of assuming, as was done, for instance, in Lord Kelvin's hypothesis of a visiting meteor laden with life spores, that life could not have begun on this earth as well as on some other world out in space which was afterward blown to pieces. That looks to me like a very cumbrous and expensive method of distributing life through the universe.

I do not believe that it was sent about by celestial bombs from some central distributing plant, which had to perish in the process. I do believe that it originated on the earth itself, but precisely how it was done nobody knows. If its origin was due to some peculiar state of matter which no longer exists, then we cannot hope to reproduce life from non-living matter, unless that ancient state of things should be revived.

It may be thought that science could discover a way to revive the necessary conditions, although Nature has abandoned them. At any rate, we are face to face with the fact that, as far as can be seen at present, Nature no longer brings absolutely new life into existence. She continues to extend it in an endless chain, which branches off many ways, but no new chain of life is begun—at least not to our knowledge.

There is a tendency in biology to interpret many of the actions of living things as simply reactions to stimuli, such as light or heat, and not as the result of free choice on the part of the organism. If this be granted for simple forms of life the question immediately arises whether it applies universally throughout the whole gamut of life. Are we, who stand at the top of the list, also only machines, acting in obedience to prearranged forces, and is our fancied self-determination merely a delusion, or are we exceptional, and if we are exceptional, are there other creatures below us which are exceptional in a similar sense, though not enjoying so high a degree of freedom from

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Latest and Most Heart Stirring Novels From This Famous Author's Pen

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

"DO you?"

"Indeed I do. What do you know about her? Nothing at all except that she is handsome, attractive, cultivated, amusing and apparently wealthy.

"You know her as a traveler, a patroness of music and the fine arts —as a devotee of literature, as a graceful hostess, and an amiable friend who gives promising young artists letters of introduction to publishers who are in a position to offer them employment."

"That this girl should know so much about the Princess Mistchenka and about his own relations with her amazed Neeland. He did not pretend to account for it; he did not try; he sat silent, serious and surprised, looking into the pretty and almost smiling face of a girl who apparently had been responsible for three separate attempts to kill him—perhaps even a fourth attempt, and who now sat beside him talking in a soft and agreeable voice about matters concerning which he had never dreamed she had heard.

For a few moments she sat silent, observing in his changing expression the effects of what she had said to him. Then, with a smile:

"Ask me thatever questions you desire to ask, Mr. Neeland. I shall do my best to answer them."

"Very well," he said bluntly; "how do you happen to know so much about me?"

"I know something about the friends of the Princess Mistchenka. I have to."

"Did you know who I was there in the house at Brookhollow?"

"No."

"When, then?"

"When you yourself told me your name I recognized it."

"I surprised you by interrupting you in Brookhollow?"

"Yes."

"You expected no interruption?"

"None."

"How did you happen to go there? Where did you ever hear of the olive wood box?"

"I had advices by cable from aboard—directions to go to Brookhollow and secure the box."

"Then somebody must be watching the Princess Mistchenka."

"Of course," she said simply.

"Why 'of course'?"

"Mr. Neeland, the Princess Mistchenka and her youthful protege, Miss Carew——"

"What!!!"

The girl smiled wearily

"Really," she said, "you are such a boy to be mixed in with matters of this color. I think that's the reason you have defeated us—the trained-fencer dreads a left-handed novice more than any classic master of the foils."

"And that is what you have done to us—blundered—if you'll forgive me—into momentary victory.

"But such victories are only momentary, Mr. Neeland. Please believe it. Please try to understand, too, that this is no battle with masks and plastrons and nicely padded buttons. No; it is no comedy, but a grave and serious affair that must inevitably end in tragedy—for somebody."

"For me?" he asked without smiling.

She turned on him abruptly and land one hand lightly on his arm with a pretty gesture, at once warning, appealing and protective.

"I asked you to come here," she said, "because — because I want you to escape the tragedy."

"You want me to escape?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I—am sorry for you."

He said nothing.

"And—I like you, Mr. Neeland."

The avowal in the soft, prettily modulated voice, lost none of its charm and surprise because the voice was a trifle tremulous, and the girl's face was tinted with a delicate color.

"I like to believe what you say, Scheherezade," he said pleasantly. "Somehow or other I never did think you hated me personally—except once——"

She flushed, and he was silent, remembering her humiliation in the Brookhollow house.

"I don't know," she said in a colder tone, "why I should feel at all friendly toward you, Mr. Neeland, except that you are personally courageous, and you have shown yourself generous under a severe temptation to be otherwise.

For Constipation! Physic Purge or Laxative?

Everyone now and then becomes constipated, and millions are chronically in that condition. The perplexing question arises—what to use.

Purgatives and cathartics are drastic and usually cause a reaction. Saline waters are rapid in action but do no more than empty the bowels.

Just as certain an effect, and certainly a much more pleasant one, can be obtained by the use of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It acts gently, without griping. It is an especially ideal medicine for children, women, old people and others who want purges too powerful.

Only a teaspoonful is required, and by morning the treatment is free and complete. A bottle in the house is insurance for the whole family against constipation, indigestion, headaches, flatulency and other digestive ills.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

Stocks Strong and Active in New York at Noon

TEXAS OIL IS THE WEAKEST ISSUE

Off Nine Points at Its Lowest; Coppers and Steels Higher

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon although a little below the highest level of the morning. The market had a good opening and after yielding a little under selling pressure rallied for a broad advance. Coppers and steels became strong groups. A number of oils weakened. Texas Co. and Mexican Petroleum showing the largest losses. At the lowest the former was off nine points. Industrial Alcohol was strong, being up ore than four points at its highest. U. S. Food Products showed nearly three points gain. Motors did not retain early strength as a class, starting higher, but receding. Maxwell and Chandler were exceptions, advancing three points and holding.

U. S. Steel sold at 101½, up 1¾, at its highest, and specialties were strong as a group. This was true also of coppers. Anaconda advanced more than two points. Baldwin was higher as o class, especially Southern Pacific. The market was very active, first hour transactions totalling more than 470,000 shares.

Issues to sell at record highest prices included General Motors, Chandler, Associated Dry Goods and American Linseed Oil. Others to make highs for the year were Anaconda, Kennecott, Utah Copper, California Petroleum, Marine common and Manhattan Shirt.

LARGEST GAINS AT NOON.

The largest gains at noon included U. S. Steel, 1¾ at 100⅞; Anaconda, 2 at 62⅞, Kennecott, 1⅞ at 33⅝, Utah Copper, 1 at 78; Crucible, 1⅞ at 71⅝; Beet Sugar, 1 at 85⅝; American Smelting, 2½ at 77⅝; Chandler, 3½ at 157; Maxwell, 3 at 48; Industrial Alcohol, 2⅜ at 107 and U. S. Food Products, 2⅞ at 79.

Texas Co. was off 7 at 273; American Petroleum, 1⅜ at 178⅜; General Motors, 2 at 155¾ and Atlantic Gulf, 2½ 165⅝.

MARKET HAD FIRM START.

Most speculative leaders made small gains at the opening and the market tone was firm. Demand exceeded the supply, for most orders received from out of town over Sunday were to buy. As the resumption of trading finds lots in the main the public apparently is still bolstering the bull movement. Abe Confirmed sentiment was realized by both. It being argued by this element that the market was weaker technically and that the unfilled tonnage report of U. S. Steel indicated that the country's big industry was retrograding temporarily. The slaughtering of old time market leaders in points is evidence that the upward movement is forced. Predictions are heard that such forcing will shake loose collapses it will cause a momentous reaction.

BEAR ARGUMENTS ARE OLD.

But such arguments have been presented for weeks without effect, and while business readjustment is proceeding slowly a general improvement is admitted. Great industrial leaders as soon as peace is reached in Europe and it is realized that if business is lagging a little in the United States there is no doubt but that the present and prospective condition of this country is far better than that of any other. On this street, in brief, is still sanguine. It is a question, however, whether buying of stocks by the public is based upon foreknowledge or merely a desire to gamble.

COTTON PRICES LOWER AT MARKET OPENING

New York, May 12.—Week Liverpool cables were accompanied by Liverpool selling orders at the opening and cotton was market today, and prices yielded 16 to 17 points in face of unfavorable weather in the Southern belt. Wall and commission houses were leading buyers at the declines. At the end of the session the market recovered all its earlier losses on the late deliveries.

Cotton opening: May, 32.60; August, 25.68; October, 24.90; December, 24.55; January, 24.10; March, 23.98.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, May 12.—Corn opened 3c to 2c higher, oats were unchanged to 1c higher, provisions opened 5c to 10c higher.

Corn—July, $1.63½ to $1.64½; September, $1.55⅝ to $1.55⅞.

Oats—July, 66⅞c to 68c; September, 64½c to 64¾c.

Lard—July, 32.06. Ribs—July, 28.10.

Making Farmers Out of Soldiers

If the Soldiers Want Farms Secretary Lane Has a Plan for Making Waste Lands Useful

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

Secretary Lane, in an address before the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, made a strong appeal for the support of his bill for the reclamation of the desert and swamp lands of this country by turning them over to returning soldiers, financed with Government money, while they are building homes and making the lands productive.

According to the Secretary's figures there are in the United States 215,000,000 acres of unused lands. Forty million acres of this land is along the Gulf coast, fertile and of great agricultural possibilities.

The total cultivated area of Spain is only 41,000,000 acres and the country has a population of 21,000,000 people.

Argentina, the garden spot of South America, has only 44,000,000 acres under cultivation.

The great farms of Illinois, the richest in the country, with a value of $4,000,000,000, occupy only 32,000,000 acres.

The Secretary's plan is, as fast as the soldiers get back, to say to them, "Go home. See the folks. Tell them all about what you did and saw 'over there,' and then go to the unreclaimed lands and make yourself a home. The Government will pay you while you are doing it, and finance your necessary investments, and you can have forty years to pay Uncle Sam back."

This is not so generous as the terms that Canada is offering her boys nor as much of an inducement as Australia is making for soldiers to turn to farming; but, despite the lesser attraction, there are on file at the Department of the Interior 37,000 letters from American soldiers asking permission to settle on these lands and make homes.

In Canada the demand is so great that it is expected all the available Government lands will be exhausted and that the seizure and division of private lands will be required if all applicants are to be placed.

The possibilities of the Secretary's plan are enormous. If there were enough American young men who would enthusiastically take up the cultivation of 215,000,000 acres of land, they could be the greatest influence in the life of this country.

Cultivated scientifically and intensively this waste land would provide enough food for every man, woman and child in the country.

And the man who feeds America is the man who has the real power.

If you don't think so talk with somebody from North Dakota and ask him who is the boss in that State.

Farming used to be looked upon as a sort of prison life with an indeterminate sentence.

It isn't that any more.

A man with a good farm paid for is the most independent of Americans. He is the freest of the free.

He is no longer the victim of time nor distance.

The telephone was the first link between the farm and town. By it the farmer could get the news briefly.

Then came the Rural Post, and the news was promptly and more fully brought to the tin box at the roadside.

Then the automobile outdid both.

It allowed the farmer to get to town quickly, easily and cheaply, and that ended any sense of imprisonment.

Secretary Lane's plan to vitalize the great waste places of the country ought to have the widest publicity, but the determining factor in its success is the attitude of the returning soldiers.

Do We Eat With Our Eyes?

A Very Interesting Question

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Dr. Harvey Wiley in an article in this month's Good Housekeeping asks his readers, "Do we eat with our eyes?" and then goes on to give a most entertaining answer to his question.

We all remember the boy who broke up the German band by sucking a lemon in front of the players.

That was proof that musicians can eat lemons with their eyes.

Pepsin was for a long time produced by starving pigs until they were voraciously hungry and then displaying tempting food out of their reach.

The pigs actually ate with their eyes, secreting great quantities of digestive fluids rich in pepsin which was gathered from their mouths.

The habit of eating with the eyes is a well-recognized one. It is the reason why a red apple always sells better than a green one; why the farmer puts coloring in butter; why we prefer perfectly white flour to that which has the natural tinge of the wheat.

Luther Burbank recognizes the necessity of appealing to the eye with his new fruits and vegetables and endeavors to breed an attractive color along with his other new creations.

But eating with your eyes leads us into great dangers. Home foods are made attractive to the sight at the expense of their value to the body.

Dr. Wiley has been a great power in the correcting of these abuses and the pure food laws which he was largely instrumental in having passed forbid many of the evils of artificially colored products.

Dr. Wiley tells of some of the things which it is still necessary to watch for and avoid.

As an automobile is just as good, and nothing more than the steel that is put into it, so men and women and children are physically just what they may be expected to be from the food that they eat.

Dr. Wiley in his excellent series of home table talks in Good Housekeeping every month gives every mother and father valuable advice as to the best kind of food for the family and how to get the greatest benefit from it.

A SPRING SONNET

(To a Spring Bonnet)

I SAW you in a car the other day,
While I was riding down the avenue.
You were a mass of bloom of every hue
And ribbons, a bewildering array.
How much you cost I really cannot say,
But some one paid a pretty price for you,
And, more than likely, paid it gladly, too,
For your fair owner's face was sweet as May.

"I SEEN," she said, "where Italy got peeved.
And told them other nations she would go,
Because she kinda thinks she ain't received
Some kind of ultimatum—I don't know."
O fair Spring bonnet, do you not feel blue
When thus your gentle owner talks through you?

Principle of Maternity Benefits Indorsed by General Edwards

The principle of maternity benefits as a general health measure is indorsed by Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commanding the Northeastern Department and former Commander of the Yankee Division.

This indorsement is conveyed in a letter from General Edwards to Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer of Cambridge, who drafted the so-called "Mothers' bill" now before the Legislature. This bill calls for an appropriation of $50,000 to provide obstetrical care for mothers unable to secure it for themselves.

Miss Spencer read General Edwards' letter at a hearing on the bill before the Senate Ways and Means Committee, as follows:

My Dear Miss Spencer:

It gives me pleasure to indorse the general principles of maternity benefits as a medium for preserving the health of our people. There has been a crying need for many years for some action in these lines to check the appalling increase of maternal mortality and infant death rate of this country.

It is well known that we are behind the older nations in caring for our unborn generations, and we should delay no longer on this most important work. There will never come a time when there will not be grave questions of expenses to be met by any State or nation, and, therefore, we should not delay now because a question of dollars and cents arises when it comes to the lives and well-being of the mothers of our country. The staunch support and loyalty of our women in this war have won the undying admiration of soldiers, and it seems an especially dreadful thing to those who have felt their womankind behind them at times of greatest peril to deny to these women at the time of their greatest need the care which the country should justly offer to its citizens.

Specifically, I am not familiar with the details of the bill to protect mothers and children during the maternity period, but I heartily indorse the general principles envolved.

Yours Sincerely,

G. R. EDWARDS.

ONE OF the rewards.
THAT SOMETIMES comes.
TO COLUMN conductors.
IS THAT once in a while.
SOME WELL-MEANING friend.
WILL NAME a dog.
OR PERHAPS a calf.
OR MAYBE a cat.
AND GIVE it the name.
OF THE column conductor.
IT'S HAPPENED to me.
AND RIGHT at this moment.
AWAY OUT in the West.
THERE ARE two or three cats.
OF THE male persuasion.
AND A growing calf.
AND THREE good dogs.
THAT BEAR my name.
AND I'M proud as can be.
AND I don't even know.
IF THEY carry the name.
IN A dignified way.
AS I'D like them to do.
BUT ENOUGH'S enough.
AND I'M worried today.
BECAUSE A friend of mine.
HAS SENT me word.
FROM THE Golden West.
THAT A canning company.
IS CANNING clams.
CLOSE BY the place.
WHERE I used to live.
AND RIGHT on the label.
IN BIG red letters.
THEY'VE PRINTED the name.
"THE K. C. B. Clam."
AND THEY advertise.
THAT THE K. C. B. Clam.
IS THE hard-shelled sort.
WITH THE fat little neck.
AND THEY further say,
THAT BEFORE they're canned.
EVERY BIT of the sand.
HAS BEEN well washed out.
AND THE friend who writes,
TO TELL me of this.
SAYS HE'S tried the clams.
JUST BECAUSE he knows me.
AND THEY'RE "tougher'n tripe."
AND I'VE had his letter.
FOR TWO or three days.
AND I'VE tried to be proud.
OF THIS new distinction.
THAT HAS come to me.
AND THEN I recall.
WHAT A low-down affair.
A CLAM really is.
AND HOW cold it is.
AND IT has no sense.
AND JUST lays around.
IN A mess of mud.
AND IT makes me sick.
AND WHOEVER it was.
THAT PICKED my name.
TO GO on the cans.
HAD A lot of nerve.
AND MY wife says.
THAT SHE can't understand.
WHEN THEY thought of me.
WHEN THEY were looking around.
FOR SOME sort of a name.
THAT WOULD fit a canned clam.

I THANK you.

Homesick—there's a little stretch of meadowland I know that's blue with fragrant violets this very minute and yellow with cowslips and golden with buttercups, and there's a little wobbly-kneed calf leaning over the fence, big-eyed and wistful, and somewhere in the fields the meadowlark is singing. Oh, heart of mine, to be there again with one I loved so dear, so dear—just for one happy moment!

Never mind, Telephone Tim, I guess we all get homesick once in a while, and your letter gave me a chance to cry a little—and now I feel better.

"A STRANGE BIRD"

BY HENRY CLIVE

Henry Clive has discovered "a strange bird." It is more gorgeous than the peacock, more beautiful than the bird of paradise. But this is the female of the species—and its name is—Woman! What bird was ever so rare, so gay of plumage as this? Clive's full-color pages, which have formed the cover of the Magazine Section for the past several Sundays, have proved a deservedly popular feature. Next Sunday he offers this gay, colorful, feathered "bird," which you will "discover" to be lovely Woman! See it, in next Sunday's

SUNDAY ADVERTISER AND AMERICAN

NOSTALGIA COMMON TO ALL AT TIMES

By Winifred Black

WELL, Telephone Tim, who are you, anyway? A disembodied spirit, or what?

Every once in a while when things are stupid, or I am blue, and the world seems rather a dreary old place, here comes a letter from you, and all at once the sun shines and the birds sing and all the little green shoots in the garden begin to grow and pretend that Spring is really here—at last.

I do wonder what you look like and who you can be.

You write an awfully nice letter—no one could read one of them and not help liking you—but how do you get so much time and energy to spend on a perfect stranger?

Don't you ever show your real heart to the people you really know—at all?

Don't you ever say what you think anywhere—except on paper?

Somehow I have a notion that the people who live in the house with you don't know you at all.

Worst Sort of Sickness

And there you are, a real man with a real heart and a real soul, just dying to talk to somebody about the way the wind used to sound in the telephone wires when you were young and had a head full of dreams and a heart full of hope.

Homesick—well, you certainly know something about that.

It's just about the worst kind of sickness there is, isn't it?

And it doesn't make a bit of difference where you are or where you came from or how much better off you seem to be at the present minute than you were back in the place your heart aches for—does it?

I've sat in the smartest cafe in Paris with the place ablaze with lights, and crowded with gay uniforms from every corner of the globe, and have been homesick for a little old church sociable back home—just because a girl with a painted face and dyed hair sang something with a refrain that sounded like "Seeing Nellie Home."

The lights were out, uniforms faded and there I was, back again in the little home town with youth in my heart and the fragrance of the lilacs drifting in at the window and every pulse in my body keeping time to the queer little old-fashioned song.

Homesick—I've gone back to the old town and been homesick, too. I've sat in a stiff chair in a stiff little parlor and been so homesick for flowers and music and bright lights and laughter that I had all I could do not to pack my trunk and fly back to the big town that's the core of my heart's delight.

Invite the Homesick

You're homesick, too, Telephone Tim; don't deny it. What are you homesick for—a home, or just people, or a wide sweep of the Western sky, or the clean, prim, beauty of the New England hills?

Homesick—there's a little stretch of meadowland I know that's blue with fragrant violets this very minute and yellow with cowslips and golden with buttercups, and there's a little wobbly-kneed calf leaning over the fence, big-eyed and wistful, and somewhere in the fields the meadowlark is singing. Oh, heart of mine, to be there again with one I loved so dear, so dear—just for one happy moment!

Never mind, Telephone Tim, I guess we all get homesick once in a while, and your letter gave me a chance to cry a little—and now I feel better.

Liberty, How Many Kinds? Jews, Chinese, Koreans Are They Different? Mother's Day. Notice It?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

"What is truth?" said jesting Pilate, and would not wait for an answer.

"Wherever we see the cause of liberty threatened, we are ready to cast our lot with those whose liberty is threatened," said Woodrow Wilson to the French Academy of Moral and Political Sciences.

What is liberty? Does it depend on geography, color, race, religion, the power of the oppressor or his friendly attitude toward us?

The Irish are clamoring for liberty. They want to rule the land on which they were born, land that belonged to them before such a thing as an English King or Parliament existed. Is their demand for liberty not valid because eminently respectable Englishmen say it would interfere with their plans?

While Mr. Wilson was speaking, Abraham Cahan, well-known citizen of New York, was cabling to his newspaper, the Jewish Forward. "Representatives of the Armenian Army of Occupation are organizing. Murder of all Jews in Bessarabia."

The Rumanian attack on the Jews, inciting to murder, has an old-fashioned ring. It includes this: "The Jews have desecrated the Holy Cross and the Christian religion and you must make them atone with their blood. Suppress them at once."

You might call that an attack on the liberty of Jews. What is to be done about that? Anything? And what about poor old China, now denouncing Japan as an Asiatic Prussia? With United States approval Japan has done to China exactly what Prussia did to France in 1870. Japan has cut off a great slice of Chinese territory with millions of Chinese people that don't want to be Japanese. What about their liberty?

And what about Korea's ancient kingdom, whence Japan drew her early civilization, such as it was, land now enslaved by Japan? Is liberty one thing in Japan, another in Korea?

At this moment, while we talk world peace, there are sixteen different wars raging, and others threaten. The New York Times lists the sixteen wars. They are all called wars for liberty. It is a poor time to talk generous, general platitudes.

Liberty, as usual, is for those strong enough to get it, or cunning enough to make friends that will confer it. If we had been fighting England this time, as formerly, Ireland would have been free and the English fleet destroyed. We were fighting Germany, so Alsace and Lorraine are freed. Justice is done there.

The Chinese are puzzled, naturally, for they were WITH the Allies, or thought they were. They are chopped up to please Japan, because Japan is strong and cunning enough to command what she wants. And she wisely had the right alliance with England.

Backward people without a pull in world politics will wait their turn; and wait some time for liberty.

The Attorney-General has issued a warning that has comfort for little people. He tells Secretary Redfield that he cannot play the game of the trusts by fixing prices, thereby causing the government itself to establish one great conspiracy in restraint of trade.

During the war, with some excellent Wall Street gentlemen and one distinguished professional Wall Street gambler fixing prices, the trust had a pleasant time. But it seems that it is not to last forever.

Dr. Barnes, who represents the government in regulating the grain trade, checked the gambling fever and the rising price of flour and bread for a moment by reminding the wheat gamblers that he had power to forbid gambling in "futures," that is, gambling on the higher cost of living. In France men that gamble in life's necessities are put in prison at hard labor. The quality of bread in France is regulated and the price, too. Here it is go as you please. It would not do to interfere with the profits of grain gamblers, merely to protect one hundred millions of people in their purchase of the staff of life.

Yesterday was Mother's Day. Did you notice it? It was the usual day for the usual mother. Food worry, as usual. Next Sunday is mother's day in these days, and she is glad when it ends and she can get to bed and forget it.

The farmers are a great political part, becoming more powerful through their Non-Partisan League. It is worth while for politicians to take care of them. That is WHY they can borrow government money. If city dwellers had brains enough to unite as citizens instead of dividing up into parties (e. g. delivered by bosses as butchers deliver dressed poultry, they also might have consideration.
